Food price decline helps slow inflation

WASHINGTON (AP) — Consumer prices increased four-tenths of a per cent in January as the first decline in retail food prices in five months helped slow the rate of inflation, the government said today.

The Labor Department said the January consumer prices were reported on a seasonally adjusted basis. In December, consumer prices increased five-tenths of a per cent.

For the 12-month period ending in January, consumer prices increased 6.8 per cent, the lowest 12-month increase since July 1973 when prices had risen 5.7 per cent.

Wholesale prices have not increased at all during the past three-month period.

The Ford administration is forecasting an inflation rate of just under 6 per cent for 1976, and the January increase in prices was well within the target period. If continued for 12 months, the January inflation rate would lead to an over-all hike in consumer prices of only about 4.8 per cent in the year.

The Labor Department said a decline in grocery store food prices of four-tenths of a per cent during January partially offset a big increase of prices of services of 1.1 per cent. Services prices were pushed upward by a postal rate increase and higher medical costs and auto insurance rates.

Gasoline and motor oil prices fell 1.6 per cent in January, also contributing to the slower inflation rate.

Among foods, there were lower prices in January for pork, poultry, beef and fresh vegetables. The decline in pork and poultry prices were especially sharp, the department said.

Prices of commodities other than foods increased two-tenths of a per cent in January, the smallest gain in the commodities index since a similar increase in September of 1973.

Consumer prices rose during the final three-months of 1975 at an annual rate of 7.6 per cent, down from an 11 per cent rate a year earlier, and the administration is hopeful that the over-all price rise during 1976 will be less than 6 per cent.

Commissioner doubts no-fault bill will be approved this year

Missourians may have to wait awhile for no-fault automobile accident insurance.

Henry W. Edmiston, Missouri Commissioner of Insurance, told audiences in Sikeston Thursday that the bill which is now in the Missouri Legislature will probably not be passed this session.

Edmiston spoke at a "Direct Line" meeting Thursday nigt at the High School cafetorium, presented by Rep. C. F. Cline of Sikeston. the meeting was informal and Edmiston fielded questions from a small, but interested group of people from the Bootheel. Although he was allotted one hour for the question and answer period, he stayed an extra half hour when the questioning continued past the allotted period. Sixty-one persons attended the night session.

The insurance commissioner also addressed the Sikeston Association of Life Underwriters at a 11:45 a.m. meeting at the Sikeston Country Club. Insurance representatives from throughout Southeast Missouri quizzed the commissioner on various insurance- related topics.

Rep. Cline noted Thursday night that the No-Fault Insurance bill has passed the House of Representatives and been placed on the perfection calendar, but it is a long way from becoming law. He outlined the various channels the bill will have to follow before it goes to the Senate, then to various committees and returns to each body of the legislature before becoming law. Edmiston said the bill as it is now written calls for a $600 threshold, $12,000 per year maximum for medical expenses and $12,000 a year maximum for lost wages. The bill is designed to get quick payment to persons involved in an automobile accident, regardless of who is at fault. Unless a person's medical bills exceed $600, he can not sue.

Edmiston said one of the controversial parts of the bill is the $600 threshhold, which allows suit after that amount.

He said his department is recommending that no third party action be allowed unless serious injuries or death result from the accident.

Edmiston was asked if the Missouri Division of Insurance has a policy requiring of mandatory insurance before a license can be secured. He cited examples in other states where the mandatory policy had been in effect and noted that it was extremely hard to enforce and that the costs were also extremely high. Missouri does not have a mandatory policy, he said.

In response another question, Edmiston said the Missouri Division of Insurance is very concerned about banks and other financial institutions using coercion to sell insurance with their loans. He noted that the Unfair Trade Practice Bill

Bluff boy in custody for alledged extortion

POPLAR BLUFF, Mo. (AP) — A 14-year-old Poplar Bluff boy has been taken into custody for allegedly extorting about $3,000 from a 12-year-old boy, Det. Johnny Williams said today.

Williams said the 14-year-old was held overnight in the juvenile detention facility of the Butler County jail pending an appearance before a juvenile officer.

Williams gave the following account of the alléged extortion:

The two boys went on a bird hunting trip near the Black River in Butler County in May 1975. During the outing, the 12-year-old boy shot a hole in a boat docked on the river. In an apparent attempt to cover up the incident, the 14-year-old then pulled the drain plug on the boat and sunk it.

When school began last September, the 14-year-old began demanding money from the 12-year-old to keep quiet about the incident. The 14-year-old received various payments ranging from $50 to $300 until an investigation uncovered the alleged extortion this week.

Williams said officers learned of the alleged extortion when the 14-year-old reported to police that three boys attacked him at Poplar Bluff Junior High School and took $80 in cash.

The boy told officers the money was rent money his parents had given him, Williams said.

Williams said the 14-year-old was picked up Thursday night at his home. Earlier that day, Williams said, the 12-year-old had brought $200 to school but the 14-year-old was not at classes and the 12-year-old gave the money to a friend to give to the 14-year-old.

The 12-year-old is in the custody of his parents, Williams said.

Williams said the 12-year-old apparently had been stealing the money from his father's business. An investigation into the possible involvement of others is continuing, Williams said.

The $200 confiscated Thursday by police was the only money remaining from the amount allegedly extorted, Williams said.

Williams said the investigation indicated the 14-year-old had given money to family members and friends in addition to spending it himself.

California gets Lehman first

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Dennis Leo Lehman, a paroled bank robber wanted in connection with the $25,000 holdup Jan. 15 of the Bank of Kennett, Mo., in which the bandit got away in a rented plane parked across the highway, is being held here on federal bank robbery charges.

Lehman, 41, waived a removal hearing in his appearance Thursday before U.S. Magistrate Richard Gormley and will be taken to California to face a bank robbery charge there, a spokeswoman for Gormley said. Lehman has been jailed on $100,000 bond.

Lehman, also wanted in two other similar bank robberies, was arrested Wednesday night at a motel near Sky Harbor International Airport.

"We got a tip he was in town and sent five agents out to meet him," said Richard E. Long, special agent in charge of the Phoenix FBI office. Agents said Lehman did not resist, but they found two loaded pistols, a sawed-off carbine and more than $20,000 in his room.

The FBI said Lehman, who is 6-2 and wears a beard and mustache, is originally from Olympia, Wash., and had been convicted at least twice before on bank robbery charges.

He began serving a 20-year sentence in 1965 at Portland, Ore., and started serving a 30-year sentence in June 1971 at the Washington Correctional Center at Shelton, Wash., before he was paroled in August 1974, the FBI said.

He was also wanted for the $30,000 robbery last Saturday of the Humboldt National Bank in Arcata, Calif., and a robbery of a bank in Bridgman, Mich., last Oct. 10 in which the robber got away with $55,000.

The FBI said Lehman had rented a small plane at Deer Valley Airport before he was arrested here.

"When our agents confronted him outside his motel room, he at first denied he was Lehman," Long said. "Then he said, 'I'm the man you're looking for'."

The gunman who took the money from the bank at Kennett escaped in a plane he left with the engine running on an airport runway across from the bank.

DeField bill expands farm export market

JEFFERSON CITY— State Rep. Fred DeField, D-Charleston, is sponsoring legislation to expand Missouri's agricultural export market through the use of nine trade missions to foreign counties in fiscal year 1977.

"What happens during these trade missions is this," stated DeField. "Individuals representing Missouri's agriculture, business, industry and state government will attend a series of trade shows throughout the European Economic Community, Far East, Middle East, Canada and South America, merchandizing Missouri's products through a combined effort."

As the world economy and markets vary, and they often do, the trade missions can be directed to the most productive region, DeField said.

DeField says, "By utilizing trade missions, not only do representatives of state government travel abroad and participate, but representatives from business and industry who have interest in the development of foreign markets for their products can accompany the state government representatives at their own expense."

Sales teams following through immediately after the trade mission often realize actual sales.

Trade missions in just one year can reach every substantial market for Missouri products.

DeField concluded, "I believe that this method will work extremely well in marketing Missouri's agricultural products and will be significantly advantageous for the people of Southeast Missouri.

February near record warm

CAIRO, Ill. — Thus far, this month has been the second warmest February in the last 50 years of record keeping by the National Weather Service station in Cairo, the officer in charge at the station announced today.

California man held in Charleston

CHARLESTON — A California man, Ralph Montez Skidmore, 21, of San Bernardino, was picked up by Charleston police about 9:30 a.m. today and is being held in Mississippi County jail for California authorities, according to Police Chief Bob Ritchey.

Skidmore has indicated he will waive extradition on charges of possessing an illegal weapon, vandalism, grand auto theft and two counts of assault with intent to commit rape, Ritchey said.

Two East Prairie men, Bryant Johnston, 31, and Larry Johnson, 21, were arrested about 12:30 a.m. today by police officer Charlie Carthell and are being held in the Mississippi County jail pending issuance of a warrant for stealing.

Ritchey said Carthell saw the two men near the Carson warehouse on the east end of town early today and, when he stopped them, he found more than 1,000 railroad tie plates in their pickup truck.

The ties are property of Missouri Pacific Railroad.

Burglars hit grocery

EAST PRAIRIE — Morris Grocery on North Street was broken into sometime Thursday night and about $90 in cash and $50 worth of cigarettes were taken, according to Police Chief Jake Abner.

A broken window on the east side of the building was apparently the point of entry.

Abner said police are investigating the break-in, which was reported at 7 a.m. today.

House exceeds Bond's budget recommendations

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — With consideration of half the state's budget for next year still remaining, the Missouri House has already exceeded Gov. Christopher 's. bond's budget recommendations by more than $1 million.

After completing the first two days of work Thursday, the House had approved general tax expenditures for the year beginning in July of $621.6 million. Bond had recommended allocations to that point of $620.3 million.

The initial four appropriations bills fund the payment of the public debt, public education, operations of the Revenue Department and the operations of most state agencies.

Still to be considered are measures funding welfare and the prison system, mental health facilities, state colleges and universities and the operation of the legislature.

More than $1.2 billion in general tax funds is expected to be septn in the upcoming budget year, with the total expenditures of the state to top $2.5 billion. The difference comes from special funds or the federal government.

Bond called on lawmakers in his budget message last month to join him in seeking "improved management and improved economy" in state operations so there will "be no need for a tax increase now or in the foreseeable future."

He said his budget recommendations were "carefully balanced," and he promised to veto any increased spending that would threaten the already tight financial situation of the state.

Appropriations Chairman James Russell of Florissant warned House members several times during debate that only half the budget had been considred and tye total was already more than $1 million over Bond's proposals. His warnings were successful in warding off approval of several amendments increasing general revenue expenditures.

Recommendations of Russell's committee totaled $10 million less than Bond's before floor action on bills began. If the House accepts committee recommendations for the remainder of the budget, the final House total will exceed Bond's by only $764,000.

The House turned back attempts to cut the $439,000 recommendation for the Missouri Elections Commission with opponents of the cut claiming it would "cut the disclosure provisions of the law. The people of this state have a right to know who's bankrolling these candidates."

Also rejected was an effort to allocate $1.8 million in federal funds for emergency roadside telephone service in the Kansas City and St. Louis areas along with another to increase funding for the state Conservation Department.

Opponents of the Conservation Department hike, which would have come from license fees charged sportsmen, claimed any boosts should be postponed until after a campaign to gain voter approval for a special one-eighth cent sales tax to fund hunting and fishing activities is completed

Still to be considered are measures funding welfare and the prison system, mental health facilities, state colleges and universities and the operation of the legislature.

More than $1.2 billion in general tax funds is expected to be septn in the upcoming budget year, with the total expenditures of the state to top $2.5 billion. The difference comes from special funds or the federal government.

Bond called on lawmakers in his budget message last month to join him in seeking "improved management and improved economy" in state operations so there will "be no need for a tax increase now or in the foreseeable future."

He said his budget recommendations were "carefully balanced," and he promised to veto any increased spending that would threaten the already tight financial situation of the state.

Appropriations Chairman James Russell of Florissant warned House members several times during debate that only half the budget had been considred and tye total was already more than $1 million over Bond's proposals. His warnings were successful in warding off approval of several amendments increasing general revenue expenditures.

Recommendations of Russell's committee totaled $10 million less than Bond's before floor action on bills began. If the House accepts committee recommendations for the remainder of the budget, the final House total will exceed Bond's by only $764,000.

But he was unsuccessful in stopping inclusion of a $3 million appropriation of federal revenue sharing funds for rural sewer and water grants.

The House turned back attempts to cut the $439,000 recommendation for the Missouri Elections Commission with opponents of the cut claiming it would "cut the disclosure provisions of the law. The people of this state have a right to know who's bankrolling these candidates."

Also rejected was an effort to allocate $1.8 million in federal funds for emergency roadside telephone service in the Kansas City and St. Louis areas along with another to increase funding for the state Conservation Department.

Opponents of the Conservation Department hike, which would have come from license fees charged sportsmen, claimed any boosts should be postponed until after a campaign to gain voter approval for a special one-eighth cent sales tax to fund hunting and fishing activities is completed

CIA BRIBES WORSE THAN COMMUNISTS

President Ford, we are told, was "outraged" at the revelation that the CIA has funneled millions of dollars in secret cash payments to anti-Communist political leaders in Italy — outraged, that is, that the story was leaked to the press.

No one, of course, can contemplate with satisfaction the prospect of Italy becoming the first nation ever to freely vote itself Communist. With the Communist Party now that nation's second largest, and with Italy currently in the throes of forming its 38th government since the downfall of Mussolini in 1943, the prospect is very real.

The Italians have been flirting with the Communists for years, although the steadily increasing electoral strength the Communists have gathered in succeeding elections has usually been viewed as less a demonstration of popular support for them than as an expression of discontent with the Christian Democrats, who have ruled Italy for 30 years in uneasy coalition with the Socialists and other minor parties.

The great fear in Washington today is that if another national election is called as the result of Italy's latest governmental crisis, the Communists might very well win a parliamentary majority. Secretary of State Kissinger has revived the domino theory, warning that if Italy goes latest governmental crisis, the Communists might very well win a parliamentary majority. Secretary of State Kissinger has revived the domino theory, warning that if Italy goes Communist, then France or Spain or Portugal will be next, then all of Western Europe, in an inexorable process America must by all means prevent from starting.

The secretary, however, has been unable to whip up the same fear either among the Italians or our other allies, who either do not know what is in their own best interests or else have a rather more sophisticated attitude toward communism than our own conviction that we must not suffer a sparrow to fall anywhere in the world lest the Soviets catch it.

Communism, many observers point out, is no longer a monolithic menace, if ever it was. The Italian Communists, especially, are anything but the lackeys or agents of the USSR, and if the Italian people vote them into power because they believe they have better answers to Italy's problems than the other parties, this will not necessarily be cause for rejoicing in Moscow.

Actually, it is argued, the development of independent - minded, nationally oriented Communist parties in the West is the last thing the soviets desire. Better that the Communists be out of power but directly under the Kremlin's thumb than be ideologically contaminated by the bourgeois electoral processes of the Western democracies.

Be that as it may, attempts by the United States to shore up anti- communism in Italy or anywhere else by devious means could do more to make the Kissinger's fears come true than an election victory by the Communists. It is worth noting that everyone of the non-Communist Italian political leaders vigorously, and in one case, bitterly, denied receiving or wanting any part of the CIA's money.

They know, if Washington does not, that nothing could be better calculated to persuade the ordinary Italian to vote Communist than evidence that his country's politics were being subverted by the almighty American dollar.

This latest allegation involving the CIA, and President Ford's outrage that it should have been brought to light, also betrays a dismal want of faith on the part of our own leaders in the inherent superiority of democracy and in the power, not of our dollars, but of the example of our way of life.

The United states still commands an immense fund of respect and admiration as leader of the free world. But how much longer can we continue to squander our moral capital by engaging in activities whose cause for true outrage is that they are the antithesis of everything we stand for?

SLICING THE PIE

Congress has just okay'ed another nice tax cut that should please most low and middle income taxpayers and will be a good thing for our staggering economy providing we can afford it. The government must have a set amount of income tooperate on or, as usual, vote to increase the national debt again. Doesn't anyone up there in the Capitol try to figure a way to cut out some spending so we can afford a tax cut. Every time someone does try to shave the budget someone else adds on for something else. Congress cut the budget figures on the Pentagon only to have the President add it back on again. As a kid in grammar school we learned how to divide up a piece of pie by allotting a certain per cent to each slice. We suggest that politicians get their old elementary math books and do the same with the budget and work it out to 100 per cent. Then take what income we have and dole it out so everyone gets a piece of the pie and whatever size it is, make the most of it. If that is too big an order for the big- shots then most every little town has got some 10- year- olds who can get the job done. They know how to slice the pie and make it come out to 100 per cent.

RECORD BREAKER

Did you listen to the football game between Missouri and Oklahoma? When Gibbons kicked his 30th successive point after touchdown, the announcer said, "This breaks the record of Charley Rash." Incidentally, he failed to kick his 31st and that let Missouri lose by one point. We remember when Charley missed his 30th consecutive kick. He had tied the national record of that day with 29. He told the writer when he came up for the 30th to set a new national record, he did not look at the ball, but looked at the goal posts to see the ball sail through. He missed his kick. Charley was one of the finest young men we have ever had the privilege of knowing.

THE MAIN ATTRACTION FIRST

A man was being shown a farm that was for sale by the real estate agent. Coming to a strip of bottom land that bordered a stream, the man noticed a tree with dried mud extending some six feet up the trunk, and he said, "Does the stream overflow on this land?"

"No, never," the agent hastily proclaimed.

"Then, how did the mud get on that tree?" the man asked.

The agent hesitated, and then said, "From the hogs rubbing themselves against it. And now," he went on hurriedly, "I'll show you the rest of the farm."

"Right now," the man returned, "I'd rather you show me those hogs."

NOT THE WAY

From The Christian Science Monitor

CONGRESS is trying to ride antibusing legislation down a wrong-way street. The right way to crystalize this issue is not through the tactic of attaching it to other legislation—which has been happening in both houses—but to deal with it separately on its merits.

Legislators may see political advantage in rushing to respond to widespread public sentiment against busing as a means of carrying out school desegregation law—a sentiment shared by President Ford and fueled by his repeated statements on the subject. This may be prepared, like the current law denigrating it and raising hopes for change. And clear-cut, orderly legislative efforts toward change would be perfectly justifiable in a way that presidential-level comments undercutting existing court orders are not.

But it is weak-kneed of the House of Representatives to slip an antibusing amendment into its omnibus energy bill. The absurdity of putting it on the basis of the fuel used for desegration busing is emphasized by the estimate that only 3 per cent of the nation's school busing results from desegration. Does the tactic imply a vain hope that Mr. Ford would find it embarrassing to veto a bill with an antibusing amendment in it? Surely the President would not let that stop him when the energy bill contains oil controls, lower prices and other elements drawing a sharp line against his own energy policies.

Meanwhile, senators have been wranging over the use of a Health, Education and Welfare appropriations bill for amendments limiting HEW's power to enforce busing and, according to HEW, other means of desegration. Again, it would be perferable to approach the busing issue head-on and separately so that the issues are not confused.

Fundamentally, the way to enforce busing—which even now is a last resort for carrying out desegration law—is to take those other steps supported by President Ford and many others. These steps include free transfers, redrawn attendance zones and magnet schools. Housing patterns, too, are basic. It is where communities foster segregation through failure to take steps short of busing that busing is resorted to.

BUSY PRINTERS

We do agree with the President when he says that the Government should get out of the businessmen's hair and quit imposing rules and regulations which are costly to the business and the consumer alike. There are so many new rules and regulations to follow, that the small businessman finds himself unable to meet these requirements. If he does, his prices will shoot up another few percentage points to cushion the cost of the standards the government asks for. Some regulations are good and necessary and should be met but there are some that are completely outlandish and also expensive. The tons and tons of paper work that must be filled out and returned to the government are another unecessary expenditure of the taxpayers' money. No one ever sees these forms anyway. Will it ever cease? Every bureau in Washington must have a private printing plant in full operation seven days a week. This includes the treasury department, who has to print the money.

HURRAH FOR CONGRESS

At Washington, Congress passed legislation that would move Veterans Day officially back to November 11.

Missourians never did accept the arbitrary date set by Congress and continued to observe what originally was Armistice Day, Nov. 11, as veterans day. A few places had to close on both days.

No one liked it. Maybe now all of us will know just when to close and give thanks to the veterans of all wars.

If Congress would now rescind its other actions in setting several other observances on days on which the original events never occurred, so Monday could be a holiday, the country would be saved a lot of confusion.

THREAT TO THE RIVER QUAY

From The Kansas City Star

The River Quay area is one of the nice things to happen to Kansas City in recent years. Streets of restaurants, specialty shops and crafts and arts stalls gradually have bloomed to reverse a trend toward routine urban decay.

It is a place where office workers and shoppers go for lunch and noon-time walks. In the summer, high school students and families are much in evidence through the day and evening. The atmosphere is wholesome without being stuffy.

But now River Quay is in danger. An adult movie theater appears to be on the way in and there is talk of go-go bars and maybe strippers. You don't have to be priggish or a blue nose to hope that it doesn't happen.

In a city there is room for a great variety of entertainment, and there is no point in denying that what some persons consider salacious is looked upon as normal and harmless by others. In general, it should be nobody else's business what entertainment an individual seeks so long as nobody is hurt and the rights of others are not infringed upon. Some cities zone so-called "adult entertainment" establishments to a restricted district.

It will be a shame if the River Quay becomes an area of strip joints and porno stores. A bump-and-grind street simply is not the sort of place that will attract families. Whether legal restrictions are desirable or possible under zoning (not censorship) ordinances ought to be determined. In the meantime, decency and a sense of community responsibility ought to move in and preserve a nice thing created by others.

NEW LIFE ON OUR STREAMS

During the last few years stream-roamers have reported seeing watermelon, cantaloupe, cucumber and other vines of this type growing on stream banks in Monroe County.

One possible explanation that is favored by some is that now, instead of throwing the seeds of such plants out the back door, or feeding them in slop and other garbage mixtures to hog, chickens or other animals and fowls, the seeds go down modern kitchen sink drainage pipes (open or disposalls) and eventually end up washing on to those banks. Here they sometimes take root, and a few grow into productive vines, it is reported.

TOP OF THE WORLD

ONE OF THE DANGERS of science is that it confuses you. Everyone knew the world was flat until it was proved to be round.

Round? Ha! Not on your triangle.

Now we know the Earth has a slightly eliptical shape, being fatter at the equator than at the poles.

Everyone remembers how hard Edmund Hillary and Tensing Norkay worked to scale that peak in 1953. Alas, now Smithsonian Institution scientists say Mt. Chimborazo in the Equadorian Andes, just one degree south of the equator, is 7,058 feet higher than Everest. If so, that makes unheard of Chimborazo higher than 29 other South American peaks that have outranked it, and above scores of Himalayan mountains that compete with Everest.

You get the new "fact" by measuring from the core of the Earth instead of from sea level, of course. For climbers, Everest is still the big boy. But we do wish scientists would quit messing up the Guinness Book of Records.

It's hard enough to keep Mts. Everest, Aconcagua, McKinley and Kilimanjaro in some sort of order without having a thrid-rater like Chimborazo making wild revisionist claims.

OLD AGE

We heard this conversation in the dining room at the Nursing Home one morning last week. One lady complained about not feeling well and continued with, "Looks like the older you get, the better you'd feel." That philosophy holds good for the first 20 years. TIME FOR THOUGHT AND ACTION

The arrival of a new year, as always, brings with it a chance to assess the past year, then put it behind us and face our responsibilities and opportunities with a fresh outlook. In this respect, 1976 will be an especially significant year for concerned Americans — and that should be all of us.

This year marks the peak of our Bicentennial celebration, brings many local and state elections, and, of course, heralds a presidential campaign and election. So it is a particularly appropriate time to pause and take stock of the records of our nation and our leaders.

Each citizen must make his or her own judgment on these things, and then act accordingly.

Acting means deciding what you want America to accomplish in the coming years, and finding out candidates agree withyour ideas. Then, give them your support — and your vote — in the coming primaries and the November election.

Two hundred years ago, Americans fought to insure our right to make and support these decisions. This Bicentennial year the very least we can do to commemorate that struggle is to exercise those rights. That's also the only way to preserve them.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Jack Anderson

JACK ANDERSON SAYS:
Tennessee Congressman Has Yen for High Life
with LES WHITTEN

WASHINGTON— Rep. Harold Ford, D-Tenn., came to Congress last year as one of its most promising freshmen. He has been assigned to the powerful House Ways and Means Committee.

But this aggressive young Congressman regrettably has a weakness for high living. He also placed his leading campaign contributors, or their proteges, on his government payroll.

Because they did little work, he raided the federal manpower training program for office workers. This, unfortunately, violates federal law.

The 30-year-old Ford financed his campaign, in large part, from the contributions he received from his campaign manager C. Eric Lincoln, the Rev. R. C. George, dentist Roberrt Tharpe, Memphis realtor Sam Dattel and their intimates.

On the day Ford was sworn in, he immediately put Lincoln, Rev. George Tharpe's wife and Dattel's protege, William McSwain, on the congressional payroll at salaries up to $1,633 a month.

By all accounts, only Mrs. Tharpe worked an eight-hour day for the new Congressman. It looked suspiciously as if Ford were trying to repay his campaign contributors by putting them on the public payroll.

The working members of Ford's office, meanwhile, were assigned such unusual duties as driving around a pretty, young Delta airline hostess who frequented the office, chauffeuring Ford back and forth from Capitol Hill and babysitting his children.

All of this caused such a heavy drain on Ford's staff that he had to find someone to keep his congressional office going. He discovered the perfect solution, with the help of friends in the city and county governments back in Memphis.

Under the federal Comprehensive Employment Training Act, funds are provided to train workers for local governments. Ford cajoled local officials into assigning the workers to his offices in Memphis, far enough from Washington possibly to be overlooked by the Justice Department. For this misuse of the training program happens to be illegal.

Clearly, the Congressman suspected that he might be violating the law. For he asked the Law Division at the Library of Congress for a ruling. The Library sent him a private, unconditional report last September that "such employment, as a benefit to the Member, would be in violation" of the statute.

There can be no question, therefore, that Ford knew his employment practices were against the law. Nevertheless, he continued to keep at least three of the federally-paid workers in his office. The peanlty is a $3,000 fine, plus repayment of the salaries.

The Congressman's personal spending habits are equally curious. He professes to be broke, yet he scatters money around as if it were confetti.

In 1972, he signed a pauper's oath. His campaign committee is still more than $6,000 in the hole. He is being sued for lawyer's fees in a redistricting case.

At one hotel, he piled up a debt of more than $1,000. At another, he was required to pay in advance when his wife passed a bad check. At times, he has been obliged to borrow cab fare from bellhops and office aides.

In the House stationery store, he was "red-listed," thereby barring purchases until he personally deposited money in his account. He spent his entire $6,500 stationery allowance during his first few months in office, part of it to buy hundreds of cuff links and other trinkets for his friends.

Yet despite all the wolves at his door, he has managed to purchase an $80,000 house and furnish it lavishly. He granted an $18,000 loan to his campaign committee, and he splurges on clothes at Georgetown's most fashionable shops.

Ford has also been extravagant with the taxpayers' money. Once he tried to charge the taxpayers for political mailings, promoting a "Harold Ford Day." Even the timid House Folding Room turned him down, refusing to let him use his free mailing privileges to promote himself.

At first, Ford conceded that he realized his use of county workers violated the law. Later he recanted and claimed it was legal. However, he abruptly stopped using the Manpower training funds to pay his staff after we questioned him about it. Ford also denied impropriety in any of his staff arrangements. His financial affairs, he insisted, are now in order. Lincoln has also started working full time for his congressional pay.

Footnote: Ford has claimed to the press that he holds a master's degree from prestigious Vanderbilt University. When we inquired, he said his M.S. came from Gupton College, Nashville. At Gupton, we learned the Congressman's M.S. stands for an arts degree in Mortuary Science.

But Will They Strike?

Police association launching national drive to unionize all cops in country

BAL HARBOUR, Fla. — Even under the palm trees a policeman's lot is not a happy one, they say. Actually I went up the road on a more romantic mission, to see how some of the Mafiosi live in a fashion to which they've become quite easily accustomed. I was diverted when I learned there's considerable police union sentiment in nearby counties; the Federal Mediation Service fellows quietly are trying to prevent cops' job action in 12 Florida communities.

And the big International Conference of Police Associations (ICPA) plans to send its organizers down in some 60 days.

This ICPA is quite a labor federation unto itself. It's as independent of labor's high command meeting here as are the miners, the auto workers and the Teamsters. But the ICPA does cooperate closely with the AFL-CIO's Public Employee Department -- especially the firefighters.

When I queried the association's Washington-based president about strikes, he didn't say yes, nor did he say no to job action. There's little doubt that actual police stoppages -- not the blue flu or the slow motion ticket issuing, traffic stalling gimmicks but the real strike weapon -- will be used as the police unionization drive sweeps across the land.

Association leader, 6-foot-4, 270-pound ex-New York City radio car patrolman Ed Kiernan, thinks of himself as a labor leader "as much in the labor movement as any of them with you now."

Kiernan, ex-president of the Big Apple's Patrolmen's Benevolent Assn., could play his old street-cruising self in some movie. But don't get the flatfoot image. He's on the hustings much of the time, skillfully organizing as would any field "rep-- of the hard hats or the needle trades. And he's one of the best legislative lobbyists in the business.

•When I spoke with him the other day he had just returned from five communities in North Carolina, including Greensboro and High Point. He was putting the final touches on an agreement in the Las Cruces, New Mexico, police strike. This had triggered a wide municipal walkout, including firefighters and sanitation men, and had brought in Jerry Worf's mubnicipal employes organizers. They signed up 900 city workers there.

To picture the ICPA, view it as a sort of AFL-CIO for its 180,000 cops, members of their own Benevolent Assns. Its objective is to sign up all PBAs, or organizing locals, to cover the nation's 450,000 policemen, sheriffs et al.

Kiernan has tough competition -- the Teamsters and several national AFL-CIO unions. The Teamsters are heavy in police ranks in Michigan, South Dakota and even in a string of California cities. The Teamsters rent themselves out as collective bargaining specialists -- it's reported that at least one Benevolent Assn. has paid as much as $190,000 to have the Brotherhood's table-pounders bargain for the cops.

But there are as many small patrolmen's associations across the land which can't afford anywhere near that, so Kiernan now provides collective bargaining counsel for a low fee. And he will come to it personally. He will pound the table himself across from the mayor or city manager. Or even the police chief.

It's Kiernan who turned the 20-year-old ICPA into a labor union which reaches from Naples, across the state here, to San Francisco where the cops did strike last winter.

The cops now picket like plumbers. About a year ago, patrolmen picketed nine roads leading into Pleasantville, N.J., for a day to prove they could isolate a community. They did. Teamsters and other AFL-CIO unionists refused to cross the lines. And last September, some 2,000 former New York cops joined by firemen who had been slashed from the payroll, marched on the nation's Capitol. And they worked the corridors as would any machinists or laborers' lobbyists.

The cops associations are going tthe whole distance. Kiernan says a recent California police and sheriffs "union" conferende at Lake Tahoe, Nev., whooped it up for political action. A cops' COPE could have impact, especially in New York City, where the ICPA's affiliate, the Patrolemen's Benevolent Assn., has some 25,000 dues checked-off members. Their leader is husky big Ken McFeeley who is an ICPA vice president.

First ICPA vice president Jack Hawkonsen speaks for the large Chicago patrolmen's organization. What do they all want as they build their union?

"We're part of the labor field," says Kiernan. "We are committed to a no-strike position. But that is predicated on the proposition that we get collective bargaining with binding arbitration. If they withhold that, we'll go in for strikes and job action.

"We want salaries commensurate with our work; civil liberties for police as well as the criminals; good grievance procedures; a federal collective bargaining law governing public employes and that bill granting $50,000 in federal money to surviviors of officers killed in the line of duty."

Looks like the union button has caught up with the badge.

CIA BRIBES WORSE THAN COMMUNISTS

President Ford, we are told, was "outraged" at the revelation that the CIA has funneled millions of dollars in secret cash payments to anti-Communist political leaders in Italy — outraged, that is, that the story was leaked to the press.

No one, of course, can contemplate with satisfaction the prospect of Italy becoming the first nation ever to freely vote itself Communist. With the Communist Party now that nation's second largest, and with Italy currently in the throes of forming its 38th government since the downfall of Mussolini in 1943, the prospect is very real.

The Italians have been flirting with the Communists for years, although the steadily increasing electoral strength the Communists have gathered in succeeding elections has usually been viewed as less a demonstration of popular support for them than as an expression of discontent with the Christian Democrats, who have ruled Italy for 30 years in uneasy coalition with the Socialists and other minor parties.

The great fear in Washington today is that if another national election is called as the result of Italy's latest governmental crisis, the Communists might very well win a parliamentary majority. Secretary of State Kissinger has revived the domino theory, warning that if Italy goes latest governmental crisis, the Communists might very well win a parliamentary majority. Secretary of State Kissinger has revived the domino theory, warning that if Italy goes Communist, then France or Spain or Portugal will be next, then all of Western Europe, in an inexorable process America must by all means prevent from starting.

The secretary, however, has been unable to whip up the same fear either among the Italians or our other allies, who either do not know what is in their own best interests or else have a rather more sophisticated attitude toward communism than our own conviction that we must not suffer a sparrow to fall anywhere in the world lest the Soviets catch it.

Communism, many observers point out, is no longer a monolithic menace, if ever it was. The Italian Communists, especially, are anything but the lackeys or agents of the USSR, and if the Italian people vote them into power because they believe they have better answers to Italy's problems than the other parties, this will not necessarily be cause for rejoicing in Moscow.

Actually, it is argued, the development of independent - minded, nationally oriented Communist parties in the West is the last thing the soviets desire. Better that the Communists be out of power but directly under the Kremlin's thumb than be ideologically contaminated by the bourgeois electoral processes of the Western democracies.

Be that as it may, attempts by the United States to shore up anti- communism in Italy or anywhere else by devious means could do more to make the Kissinger's fears come true than an election victory by the Communists. It is worth noting that everyone of the non-Communist Italian political leaders vigorously, and in one case, bitterly, denied receiving or wanting any part of the CIA's money.

They know, if Washington does not, that nothing could be better calculated to persuade the ordinary Italian to vote Communist than evidence that his country's politics were being subverted by the almighty American dollar.

This latest allegation involving the CIA, and President Ford's outrage that it should have been brought to light, also betrays a dismal want of faith on the part of our own leaders in the inherent superiority of democracy and in the power, not of our dollars, but of the example of our way of life.

The United states still commands an immense fund of respect and admiration as leader of the free world. But how much longer can we continue to squander our moral capital by engaging in activities whose cause for true outrage is that they are the antithesis of everything we stand for?

SLICING THE PIE

Congress has just okay'ed another nice tax cut that should please most low and middle income taxpayers and will be a good thing for our staggering economy providing we can afford it. The government must have a set amount of income tooperate on or, as usual, vote to increase the national debt again. Doesn't anyone up there in the Capitol try to figure a way to cut out some spending so we can afford a tax cut. Every time someone does try to shave the budget someone else adds on for something else. Congress cut the budget figures on the Pentagon only to have the President add it back on again. As a kid in grammar school we learned how to divide up a piece of pie by allotting a certain per cent to each slice. We suggest that politicians get their old elementary math books and do the same with the budget and work it out to 100 per cent. Then take what income we have and dole it out so everyone gets a piece of the pie and whatever size it is, make the most of it. If that is too big an order for the big- shots then most every little town has got some 10- year- olds who can get the job done. They know how to slice the pie and make it come out to 100 per cent.

RECORD BREAKER

Did you listen to the football game between Missouri and Oklahoma? When Gibbons kicked his 30th successive point after touchdown, the announcer said, "This breaks the record of Charley Rash." Incidentally, he failed to kick his 31st and that let Missouri lose by one point. We remember when Charley missed his 30th consecutive kick. He had tied the national record of that day with 29. He told the writer when he came up for the 30th to set a new national record, he did not look at the ball, but looked at the goal posts to see the ball sail through. He missed his kick. Charley was one of the finest young men we have ever had the privilege of knowing.

THE MAIN ATTRACTION FIRST

A man was being shown a farm that was for sale by the real estate agent. Coming to a strip of bottom land that bordered a stream, the man noticed a tree with dried mud extending some six feet up the trunk, and he said, "Does the stream overflow on this land?"

"No, never," the agent hastily proclaimed.

"Then, how did the mud get on that tree?" the man asked.

The agent hesitated, and then said, "From the hogs rubbing themselves against it. And now," he went on hurriedly, "I'll show you the rest of the farm."

NOT THE WAY

From The Christian Science Monitor

CONGRESS is trying to ride antibusing legislation down a wrong-way street. The right way to crystalize this issue is not through the tactic of attaching it to other legislation—which has been happening in both houses—but to deal with it separately on its merits.

Legislators may see political advantage in rushing to respond to widespread public sentiment against busing as a means of carrying out school desegregation law—a sentiment shared by President Ford and fueled by his repeated statements on the subject. This may be prepared, like the current law denigrating it and raising hopes for change. And clear-cut, orderly legislative efforts toward change would be perfectly justifiable in a way that presidential-level comments undercutting existing court orders are not.

But it is weak-kneed of the House of Representatives to slip an antibusing amendment into its omnibus energy bill. The absurdity of putting it on the basis of the fuel used for desegration busing is emphasized by the estimate that only 3 per cent of the nation's school busing results from desegration. Does the tactic imply a vain hope that Mr. Ford would find it embarrassing to veto a bill with an antibusing amendment in it? Surely the President would not let that stop him when the energy bill contains oil controls, lower prices and other elements drawing a sharp line against his own energy policies.

Meanwhile, senators have been wranging over the use of a Health, Education and Welfare appropriations bill for amendments limiting HEW's power to enforce busing and, according to HEW, other means of desegration. Again, it would be perferable to approach the busing issue head-on and separately so that the issues are not confused.

Fundamentally, the way to enforce busing—which even now is a last resort for carrying out desegration law—is to take those other steps supported by President Ford and many others. These steps include free transfers, redrawn attendance zones and magnet schools. Housing patterns, too, are basic. It is where communities foster segregation through failure to take steps short of busing that busing is resorted to.

BUSY PRINTERS

We do agree with the President when he says that the Government should get out of the businessmen's hair and quit imposing rules and regulations which are costly to the business and the consumer alike. There are so many new rules and regulations to follow, that the small businessman finds himself unable to meet these requirements. If he does, his prices will shoot up another few percentage points to cushion the cost of the standards the government asks for. Some regulations are good and necessary and should be met but there are some that are completely outlandish and also expensive. The tons and tons of paper work that must be filled out and returned to the government are another unecessary expenditure of the taxpayers' money. No one ever sees these forms anyway. Will it ever cease? Every bureau in Washington must have a private printing plant in full operation seven days a week. This includes the treasury department, who has to print the money.

HURRAH FOR CONGRESS

At Washington, Congress passed legislation that would move Veterans Day officially back to November 11.

Missourians never did accept the arbitrary date set by Congress and continued to observe what originally was Armistice Day, Nov. 11, as veterans day. A few places had to close on both days.

No one liked it. Maybe now all of us will know just when to close and give thanks to the veterans of all wars.

If Congress would now rescind its other actions in setting several other observances on days on which the original events never occurred, so Monday could be a holiday, the country would be saved a lot of confusion.

THREAT TO THE RIVER QUAY

From The Kansas City Star

The River Quay area is one of the nice things to happen to Kansas City in recent years. Streets of restaurants, specialty shops and crafts and arts stalls gradually have bloomed to reverse a trend toward routine urban decay.

It is a place where office workers and shoppers go for lunch and noon-time walks. In the summer, high school students and families are much in evidence through the day and evening. The atmosphere is wholesome without being stuffy.

But now River Quay is in danger. An adult movie theater appears to be on the way in and there is talk of go-go bars and maybe strippers. You don't have to be priggish or a blue nose to hope that it doesn't happen.

In a city there is room for a great variety of entertainment, and there is no point in denying that what some persons consider salacious is looked upon as normal and harmless by others. In general, it should be nobody else's business what entertainment an individual seeks so long as nobody is hurt and the rights of others are not infringed upon. Some cities zone so-called "adult entertainment" establishments to a restricted district.

It will be a shame if the River Quay becomes an area of strip joints and porno stores. A bump-and-grind street simply is not the sort of place that will attract families. Whether legal restrictions are desirable or possible under zoning (not censorship) ordinances ought to be determined. In the meantime, decency and a sense of community responsibility ought to move in and preserve a nice thing created by others.

NEW LIFE ON OUR STREAMS

During the last few years stream-roamers have reported seeing watermelon, cantaloupe, cucumber and other vines of this type growing on stream banks in Monroe County.

One possible explanation that is favored by some is that now, instead of throwing the seeds of such plants out the back door, or feeding them in slop and other garbage mixtures to hog, chickens or other animals and fowls, the seeds go down modern kitchen sink drainage pipes (open or disposalls) and eventually end up washing on to those banks. Here they sometimes take root, and a few grow into productive vines, it is reported.

ONE OF THE DANGERS of science is that it confuses you. Everyone knew the world was flat until it was proved to be round.

Round? Ha! Not on your triangle.

Now we know the Earth has a slightly eliptical shape, being fatter at the equator than at the poles.

Everyone remembers how hard Edmund Hillary and Tensing Norkay worked to scale that peak in 1953. Alas, now Smithsonian Institution scientists say Mt. Chimborazo in the Equadorian Andes, just one degree south of the equator, is 7,058 feet higher than Everest. If so, that makes unheard of Chimborazo higher than 29 other South American peaks that have outranked it, and above scores of Himalayan mountains that compete with Everest.

You get the new "fact" by measuring from the core of the Earth instead of from sea level, of course. For climbers, Everest is still the big boy. But we do wish scientists would quit messing up the Guinness Book of Records.

It's hard enough to keep Mts. Everest, Aconcagua, McKinley and Kilimanjaro in some sort of order without having a thrid-rater like Chimborazo making wild revisionist claims.

OLD AGE

We heard this conversation in the dining room at the Nursing Home one morning last week. One lady complained about not feeling well and continued with, "Looks like the older you get, the better you'd feel." That philosophy holds good for the first 20 years. One of the other ladies sitting at the table replied, "Well if we kept feeling better year by year, we'd never be willing to die." Our opinion is that the Lord diminishes our pleasure in living as we get old to prepare us for departing this world and finding another. But we'll certainly add our agreement to the matter of old age doing unpleasant things to you.

TIME FOR THOUGHT AND ACTION

The arrival of a new year, as always, brings with it a chance to assess the past year, then put it behind us and face our responsibilities and opportunities with a fresh outlook. In this respect, 1976 will be an especially significant year for concerned Americans — and that should be all of us.

This year marks the peak of our Bicentennial celebration, brings many local and state elections, and, of course, heralds a presidential campaign and election. So it is a particularly appropriate time to pause and take stock of the records of our nation and our leaders.

Each citizen must make his or her own judgment on these things, and then act accordingly.

Acting means deciding what you want America to accomplish in the coming years, and finding out candidates agree withyour ideas. Then, give them your support — and your vote — in the coming primaries and the November election.

Two hundred years ago, Americans fought to insure our right to make and support these decisions. This Bicentennial year the very least we can do to commemorate that struggle is to exercise those rights. That's also the only way to preserve them.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

But Will They Strike?

Police association launching national drive to unionize all cops in country

BAL HARBOUR, Fla. — Even under the palm trees a policeman's lot is not a happy one, they say. Actually I went up the road on a more romantic mission, to see how some of the Mafiosi live in a fashion to which they've become quite easily accustomed. I was diverted when I learned there's considerable police union sentiment in nearby counties; the Federal Mediation Service fellows quietly are trying to prevent cops' job action in 12 Florida communities.

And the big International Conference of Police Associations (ICPA) plans to send its organizers down in some 60 days.

This ICPA is quite a labor federation unto itself. It's as independent of labor's high command meeting here as are the miners, the auto workers and the Teamsters. But the ICPA does cooperate closely with the AFL-CIO's Public Employee Department -- especially the firefighters.

When I queried the association's Washington-based president about strikes, he didn't say yes, nor did he say no to job action. There's little doubt that actual police stoppages – not the blue flu or the slow motion ticket issuing, traffic stalling gimmicks but the real strike weapon – will be used as the police unionization drive sweeps across the land.

Association leader, 6-foot-4, 270-pound ex-New York City radio car patrolman Ed Kiernan, thinks of himself as a labor leader "as much in the labor movement as any of them with you now."

Kiernan, ex-president of the Big Apple's Patrolmen's Benevolent Assn., could play his old street-cruising self in some movie. But don't get the flatfoot image. He's on the hustings much of the time, skillfully organizing as would any field "rep-- of the hard hats or the needle trades. And he's one of the best legislative lobbyists in the business.

When I spoke with him the other day he had just returned from five communities in North Carolina, including Greensboro and High Point. He was putting the final touches on an agreement in the Las Cruces, New Mexico, police strike. This had triggered a wide municipal walkout, including firefighters and sanitation men, and had brought in Jerry Worf's mubnicipal employes organizers. They signed up 900 city workers there.

To picture the ICPA, view it as a sort of AFL-CIO for its 180,000 cops, members of their own Benevolent Assns. Its objective is to sign up all PBAs, or organizing locals, to cover the nation's 450,000 policemen, sheriffs et al.

Kiernan has tough competition -- the Teamsters and several national AFL-CIO unions. The Teamsters are heavy in police ranks in Michigan, South Dakota and even in a string of California cities. The Teamsters rent themselves out as collective bargaining specialists -- it's reported that at least one Benevolent Assn. has paid as much as $190,000 to have the Brotherhood's table-pounders bargain for the cops.

But there are as many small patrolmen's associations across the land which can't afford anywhere near that, so Kiernan now provides collective bargaining counsel for a low fee. And he will come to it personally. He will pound the table himself across from the mayor or city manager. Or even the police chief.

It's Kiernan who turned the 20-year-old ICPA into a labor union which reaches from Naples, across the state here, to San Francisco where the cops did strike last winter.

The cops now picket like plumbers. About a year ago, patrolmen picketed nine roads leading into Pleasantville, N.J., for a day to prove they could isolate a community. They did. Teamsters and other AFL-CIO unionists refused to cross the lines. And last September, some 2,000 former New York cops joined by firemen who had been slashed from the payroll, marched on the nation's Capitol. And they worked the corridors as would any machinists or laborers' lobbyists.

The cops associations are going tthe whole distance. Kiernan says a recent California police and sheriffs "union" conferende at Lake Tahoe, Nev., whooped it up for political action. A cops' COPE could have impact, especially in New York City, where the ICPA's affiliate, the Patrolemen's Benevolent Assn., has some 25,000 dues checked-off members. Their leader is husky big Ken McFeeley who is an ICPA vice president.

First ICPA vice president Jack Hawkonsen speaks for the large Chicago patrolmen's organization. What do they all want as they build their union?

"We're part of the labor field," says Kiernan. "We are committed to a no-strike position. But that is predicated on the proposition that we get collective bargaining with binding arbitration. If they withhold that, we'll go in for strikes and job action.

"We want salaries commensurate with our work; civil liberties for police as well as the criminals; good grievance procedures; a federal collective bargaining law governing public employes and that bill granting $50,000 in federal money to surviviors of officers killed in the line of duty."

Looks like the union button has caught up with the badge.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Jack Anderson

JACK ANDERSON SAYS:
Tennessee Congressman Has Yen for High Life
with LES WHITTEN

WASHINGTON— Rep. Harold Ford, D-Tenn., came to Congress last year as one of its most promising freshmen. He has been assigned to the powerful House Ways and Means Committee.

But this aggressive young Congressman regrettably has a weakness for high living. He also placed his leading campaign contributors, or their proteges, on his government payroll.

Because they did little work, he raided the federal manpower training program for office workers. This, unfortunately, violates federal law.

The 30-year-old Ford financed his campaign, in large part, from the contributions he received from his campaign manager C. Eric Lincoln, the Rev. R. C. George, dentist Roberrt Tharpe, Memphis realtor Sam Dattel and their intimates.

On the day Ford was sworn in, he immediately put Lincoln, Rev. George Tharpe's wife and Dattel's protege, William McSwain, on the congressional payroll at salaries up to $1,633 a month.

By all accounts, only Mrs. Tharpe worked an eight-hour day for the new Congressman. It looked suspiciously as if Ford were trying to repay his campaign contributors by putting them on the public payroll.

The working members of Ford's office, meanwhile, were assigned such unusual duties as driving around a pretty, young Delta airline hostess who frequented the office, chauffeuring Ford back and forth from Capitol Hill and babysitting his children.

All of this caused such a heavy drain on Ford's staff that he had to find someone to keep his congressional office going. He discovered the perfect solution, with the help of friends in the city and county governments back in Memphis.

Under the federal Comprehensive Employment Training Act, funds are provided to train workers for local governments. Ford cajoled local officials into assigning the workers to his offices in Memphis, far enough from Washington possibly to be overlooked by the Justice Department. For this misuse of the training program happens to be illegal.

Clearly, the Congressman suspected that he might be violating the law. For he asked the Law Division at the Library of Congress for a ruling. The Library sent him a private, unconditional report last September that "such employment, as a benefit to the Member, would be in violation" of the statute.

There can be no question, therefore, that Ford knew his employment practices were against the law. Nevertheless, he continued to keep at least three of the federally-paid workers in his office. The peanlty is a $3,000 fine, plus repayment of the salaries.

The Congressman's personal spending habits are equally curious. He professes to be broke, yet he scatters money around as if it were confetti.

In 1972, he signed a pauper's oath. His campaign committee is still more than $6,000 in the hole. He is being sued for lawyer's fees in a redistricting case.

At one hotel, he piled up a debt of more than $1,000. At another, he was required to pay in advance when his wife passed a bad check. At times, he has been obliged to borrow cab fare from bellhops and office aides.

In the House stationery store, he was "red-listed," thereby barring purchases until he personally deposited money in his account. He spent his entire $6,500 stationery allowance during his first few months in office, part of it to buy hundreds of cuff links and other trinkets for his friends.

Yet despite all the wolves at his door, he has managed to purchase an $80,000 house and furnish it lavishly. He granted an $18,000 loan to his campaign committee, and he splurges on clothes at Georgetown's most fashionable shops.

Ford has also been extravagant with the taxpayers' money. Once he tried to charge the taxpayers for political mailings, promoting a "Harold Ford Day." Even the timid House Folding Room turned him down, refusing to let him use his free mailing privileges to promote himself.

At first, Ford conceded that he realized his use of county workers violated the law. Later he recanted and claimed it was legal. However, he abruptly stopped using the Manpower training funds to pay his staff after we questioned him about it. Ford also denied impropriety in any of his staff arrangements. His financial affairs, he insisted, are now in order. Lincoln has also started working full time for his congressional pay.

Footnote: Ford has claimed to the press that he holds a master's degree from prestigious Vanderbilt University. When we inquired, he said his M.S. came from Gupton College, Nashville. At Gupton, we learned the Congressman's M.S. stands for an arts degree in Mortuary Science.

WASHINGTON WHIRL: Supreme Court Justice Potter Stewart's son had no need to catch a taxi when he arrived in Washington last week. His father dispatched an official Supreme Court messenger to give his son a lift ... Morale at the Bureau of Indian Affairs has hit an all-time low. Non-Indian employees are threatening to leave because of a Supreme Curt ruling that gives Indians preference in job advancement ... Several disgruntled employees at the Office of Minority Business Enterprise have retained a Washington law firm, Karr and Graves, to fight a suspected "secret reorganization" of the agency by its chief, Alex Armendaris.

MAGISTRATE COURT

CHARLESTON— Two persons were bound over to Circuit Court Thursday following appearances in Mississippi County Magistrate Court before Judge T. J. Brown Jr., who ordered probation revoked for a Charleston youth and set a preliminary hearing for a Sikeston man.

Darlene Sisk of Sikeston was ordered bound over to Circuit Court after waiving a preliminary hearing on a charge of burglary, involving breaking and entering, and stealing. Free on $1,000 bond, she is charged with a break-in Jan. 15 at J.D.'s Two-Way Radio Sales and Service in Bertrand and the theft of two two-way radios, a citizens band radio, a police band radio and a power pack charger booster.

James Edward Arnold of Charleston was bound over on two counts of burglary, involving breaking and entering, and stealing and is to appear March 9.

Accused of Jan. 16 break-ins at Kerr-McGee Service Station and Rosa's Beauty Shop in Charleston, Arnold is free on $10,000 bond.

Probation of Jimmy Wayne Wyatt of Charleston, granted Feb. 5 on a stealing charge, was ordered revoked after the youth was charged with stealing a radio and three sets of keys Feb. 12 from the office of Police Chief Bo Ritchey. He was ordered to begin serving a six-month sentence in the county jail.

A preliminary hearing for Johnny Michael Wasbutsky of Sikeston, charged with burglary, involving breaking and entering, and stealing in connection with the theft of $30 from Cunningham's Coffee Shop in Bertrand on Jan. 4, was scheduled for March 4. He remained in custody under $5,000 bond.

Applications for disqualification of Judge Brown were sustained and Scott County Magistrate Lloyd Briggs of Sikeston will be called to hear the burglary and stealing charges against Jesse Jull and Curtis Howard of Charleston, who remained in custody under $15,000 bonds each.

The two are accused of a break-in at Crystal Inn in Charleston andt he theft of two guitars, 95 quarts of whisky, two amplifiers, 15 cases of beer and an undetermined amount of cash.

Dennis Maxs Jordan of Charleston pleaded not guilty to careless and imprudent driving and trial was set for Feb. 26.

A warrant was issued for the arrest of David K. Brown of East Prairie after he failed to appear in court on charges of driving without a license and operating a vehicle without license plates.

A charge of burglary, involving breaking and entering, and stealing against Henry Obie Pehm of Charleston was reduced to a misdemeanor of receiving stolen property on the recommendation of Prosecuting Attorney Edward C. Graham.

Pehm, who had been charged with breaking into Monsanto Chemical Co. of Charleston and stealing 40 one-gallon cans of herbicide valued at $2,600, received a suspended one-year jail sentence and was placed on two-year supervised probation on condition he obey the law and pay $26 court costs.

Jimmy Anthony of East Prairie received a suspended six-month jail sentence and was placed on two-year probation after he pleaded guilty to stealing, in connection with the theft of gasoline Feb. 7 from McTigue Ready Mix Concrete Co. in East Prairie. Conditions of probation include obeying the law and paying $21.50 court costs.

An attorney was appointed to defend aJesse Burleson of rural East Prairie against a charge of molesting a minor with immoral intent, and the case was continued. He remained in custody under $5,000 bond.

Continued to Feb. 26

Stanley and Linda Davidson of East Prairie assault with intent to do great bodily harm, allowed additional time to employ attorneys in connection with charges of shooting assault on Thomas Linley and Margie Linley and both remained in custody under $5,000 bonds; Julia Ann Espey of Farmington, speeding; Ricky Alan Brooks of Matthews, speeding; Joseph V. McKinney, stealing; Coy Henry Yarbo of East Prairie, no operator's license and defective lights; and William Theordore Eberley of Sikeston, failure to transfer license plates.

Continued to April 16

Rulings in drug-related cases against Rick Witty, David Bright and Phillip Carlyle of Eats Prairie and Dale Morgan of Charleston were continued by Judge Brown. Preliminary hearings for the four were held Jan. 22 and at that time Judge Brown had reserved his ruling until Thursday due to the unavailability of Roy Vernon Dean, who had been subpoenaed by the defense in the cases. Witty and Morgan are free on $10,000 bonds and Bright and Carlyle are free on $2,000 bonds.

MAGISTRATE COURT

CHARLESTON— Two persons were bound over to Circuit Court Thursday following appearances in Mississippi County Magistrate Court before Judge T. J. Brown Jr., who ordered probation revoked for a Charleston youth and set a preliminary hearing for a Sikeston man.

Darlene Sisk of Sikeston was ordered bound over to Circuit Court after waiving a preliminary hearing on a charge of burglary, involving breaking and entering, and stealing. Free on $1,000 bond, she is charged with a break-in Jan. 15 at J.D.'s Two-Way Radio Sales and Service in Bertrand and the theft of two two-way radios, a citizens band radio, a police band radio and a power pack charger booster.

James Edward Arnold of Charleston was bound over on two counts of burglary, involving breaking and entering, and stealing and is to appear March 9.

Accused of Jan. 16 break-ins at Kerr-McGee Service Station and Rosa's Beauty Shop in Charleston, Arnold is free on $10,000 bond.

Probation of Jimmy Wayne Wyatt of Charleston, granted Feb. 5 on a stealing charge, was ordered revoked after the youth was charged with stealing a radio and three sets of keys Feb. 12 from the office of Police Chief Bo Ritchey. He was ordered to begin serving a six-month sentence in the county jail.

A preliminary hearing for Johnny Michael Wasbutsky of Sikeston, charged with burglary, involving breaking and entering, and stealing in connection with the theft of $30 from Cunningham's Coffee Shop in Bertrand on Jan. 4, was scheduled for March 4. He remained in custody under $5,000 bond.

Applications for disqualification of Judge Brown were sustained and Scott County Magistrate Lloyd Briggs of Sikeston will be called to hear the burglary and stealing charges against Jesse Jull and Curtis Howard of Charleston, who remained in custody under $15,000 bonds each.

The two are accused of a break-in at Crystal Inn in Charleston andt he theft of two guitars, 95 quarts of whisky, two amplifiers, 15 cases of beer and an undetermined amount of cash.

Dennis Maxs Jordan of Charleston pleaded not guilty to careless and imprudent driving and trial was set for Feb. 26.

A warrant was issued for the arrest of David K. Brown of East Prairie after he failed to appear in court on charges of driving without a license and operating a vehicle without license plates.

A charge of burglary, involving breaking and entering, and stealing against Henry Obie Pehm of Charleston was reduced to a misdemeanor of receiving stolen property on the recommendation of Prosecuting Attorney Edward C. Graham.

Pehm, who had been charged with breaking into Monsanto Chemical Co. of Charleston and stealing 40 one-gallon cans of herbicide valued at $2,600, received a suspended one-year jail sentence and was placed on two-year supervised probation on condition he obey the law and pay $26 court costs.

Jimmy Anthony of East Prairie received a suspended six-month jail sentence and was placed on two-year probation after he pleaded guilty to stealing, in connection with the theft of gasoline Feb. 7 from McTigue Ready Mix Concrete Co. in East Prairie. Conditions of probation include obeying the law and paying $21.50 court costs.

An attorney was appointed to defend aJesse Burleson of rural East Prairie against a charge of molesting a minor with immoral intent, and the case was continued. He remained in custody under $5,000 bond.

Continued to Feb. 26

Stanley and Linda Davidson of East Prairie assault with intent to do great bodily harm, allowed additional time to employ attorneys in connection with charges of shooting assault on Thomas Linley and Margie Linley and both remained in custody under $5,000 bonds; Julia Ann Espey of Farmington, speeding; Ricky Alan Brooks of Matthews, speeding; Joseph V. McKinney, stealing; Coy Henry Yarbo of East Prairie, no operator's license and defective lights; and William Theordore Eberley of Sikeston, failure to transfer license plates.

Dora Brown, littering private property, and Steve A. Craddock of East Prairie, two ounts of driving without an operator's license.

Continued to April 16

Rulings in drug-related cases against Rick Witty, David Bright and Phillip Carlyle of Eats Prairie and Dale Morgan of Charleston were continued by Judge Brown. Preliminary hearings for the four were held Jan. 22 and at that time Judge Brown had reserved his ruling until Thursday due to the unavailability of Roy Vernon Dean, who had been subpoenaed by the defense in the cases. Witty and Morgan are free on $10,000 bonds and Bright and Carlyle are free on $2,000 bonds.

Semistarvation diet grows in popularity

CLEVELAND (AP) — A semistarvation program for massive obesity, begun at Mount Sinai Hospital here, has been so successful it will be expanded this year to hospitals in six other cities in the United States and Canada, the doctor in charge says.

Dr. Victor Vertes, director of medicine at Mount Sinai and professor of medicine at Case Western Reserve University, said the program will begin shortly at hospitals in Los Angeles, Chicago, Detroit, Boston, Miami and Montreal.

The program was begun by Vertes and Dr. Saul M. Genuth, associate professor of medicine at Case Western and director of Mount Sinai's Saltzman Institute for Clinical Research, in 1971.

"We have the treatment of choice for massive obesity and 80 per cent of the nearly 400 persons in the program get pretty close to their ideal weight," Vertes said.

"This is in contrast to the orthodox weight reduction methods where only 5 per cent are successful in losing 40 pounds."

In the program, patients are permitted no food and no caloric beverages. Instead, they are given a supplement mixed in water or no- calorie drinks, providing 300 calories, largely protein.

Patients are first hospitalized for a week of tests and started on the fast. They then return to the hospital outpatient clinic each week for examination, weighing, blood studies and supplies.

Some patients have lost 200 or 300 pounds, the doctors say, and weight losses of 50 to 100 pounds are common.

Vertes said about half the patients treated at the clinic had high blood pressure but that only a few had to be treated with drugs to control the illness after weight loss.

Other patients "with evidence of diabetes" returned to normal after weight loss and with a controlled diet, Vertes said.

Bridge winners

Winners at the bridge club Thursday in the Ramada Inn were:

First place – Virginia Morrow and Ben Lankheit.

Second and third place (tie) -- Bea Depro and Nanette Morris and Mary Goodin and Ann Newton.

Fourth place – Linda Gipson and Marilyn Baker.

All bridge players are invited to perhaps surpass the previous record of seven tables in play. Games start at 7:30 p.m.

No Need to Catch Up!

Women have come a long way in a lot of things, but they don't need to catch up with men in cigarette smoking, the leading cause of lung cancer, says the American Cancer Society.

Ann Landers

Husband gets kick from pornography

Dear Ann Landers: What can I do about a husband who insists on taking me to hard-core pornographic movies and buying far-out erotic junk for "us" to look at?

He says it's very good for our sex life and I should "grow up." I've told him time and time again that those raunchy explicit movies turn me OFF, not on. The whole idea of watching couples and members of the same sex play games (I'd hardly call it "making love") is repulsive to me. It kills any feelings I might have for love or beauty or tenderness.

He says I am either a phony or abnormal. Acccording to him everybody gets sexually aroused by such things. We have had several arguments over this. He also thinks group sex would be "interesting" as an experiment. I told him I'd leave him first.

What are your views? -- Square Peg

Dear Peg: I can now speak with some authority on the subject since I saw my first (and last) pornographic movie two weeks ago in San Francisco. In my opinion, anyone who would go to see that trash a second time has got to be a little sick. If the nausea doesn't get you, the boredom will. I considered it the biggest rip-off since Bell-Boy Ponzi. The price of admission was $5. I walked out.

If your husband enjoys porno movies let him go alone. The same for erotic literature and "art." If he needs it to turn on, O.K. There are different strokes for different folks. But I see no reason for you to force yourself to look at it if it has a negative effect on you.

As for censorship of this garbage, I am against it. I believe adults should be permitted to see anything they want to see and no government should interfere. After a while the vast majority of people will get their fill of the slop and the porno hucksters won't be able to give it away. This is what happened in Denmark.

Dear Ann Landers: My father is a minister. He has the notion that he should be able to wear whatever he wishes when he officiates at funerals.

Last week he wore an Aloha shirt with bright red flowers, open at the neck, and no tie. My mother and I thought it looked terrible. When we suggested that he put on a dark suit, a white shirt and a dark necktie, he said, "People need to be cheered up at a sad time in their lives. They appreciate a little color and non-conformity."

Will you express your ideas on this, Miss Landers? He likes you very much. -- Parsonage Family

Dear Family: I may lose a fan, but I must tell you that Mr. Minister is mistaken.

An Aloha shirt is fine for a clergyman if he's attending a picnic or a ballgame, but it is grossly inappropriate attire for one who is performing a religious service -- particularly a funeral. Such informality suggests a lack of respect for the occasion.

CONFIDENTIAL to How Can I Face the Future?: With courage. Life is what happens to you when you are making other plans. I agree it's devastating to be bitten by a mouth full of serpent's teeth but your children have a lifetime ahead of them in which to learn and grow. Don't write them off.

Teen-agers & their noise drive mothers insane

By ERMA BOMBECK

At a luncheon last week, a woman was telling about driving in the car with her teen-ager.

"Debbie turned into a dead-end street," she explained, "and I said to her, 'Turn.' She kept going, so I raised my voice and said, 'TURN.' She sat there frozen to the wheel and when I saw a guard rail looming in front of us, I leaned over and shouted in her ear, 'TURN!!'"

She slammed on her brakes and cried, "There you go again. You're always shouting at me."

We all nodded our heads sympathetically. There wasn't one of us who didn't have varicose veins of the neck from "talking" with our teen-agers.

The reasons were varied. One woman said she shouted at her teen-age daughter because she had to compete with radios and stereos. "Everytime I said somethin to her she just stared back with a fixed, glazed smile, clicking her fingers. I got so mad I threatened to plug her into a faucet. Then one day I figured, if you can't beat 'em, join 'em."

"What did you do?" we asked.

"Every time she asked me a question, I'd reply with a loud phonograph record. When she opened my drawer to borrow my last pair of panty hose, I'd turn up the volume on The Beatles playing 'Let It Be.' Once, when I made her spend a Saturday helping me clean, I played 23 choruses of the Carpenters singing, 'We've Only Just Beguh.'"

Another said she shouted because her son hums when she chews him out. "If we had a drum and guitar, we could record," she said bitterly.

I confessed to being a shouter because I can never find my kids to face them directly in a quiet, civilized manner.

One day I shouted under the bathroom door for 45 minutes deliverin a lecture on why a wet towel should not be left on the bed. (I hate to sound immodeist, but it was one of my finer efforts.

Stuff soft pitted prunes with chunks of candied pineapple and roll in sugar. Nice to alternate with chocolate candy on a serving plate.

Semistarvation diet grows in popularity

CLEVELAND (AP) — A semistarvation program for massive obesity, begun at Mount Sinai Hospital here, has been so successful it will be expanded this year to hospitals in six other cities in the United States and Canada, the doctor in charge says.

Dr. Victor Vertes, director of medicine at Mount Sinai and professor of medicine at Case Western Reserve University, said the program will begin shortly at hospitals in Los Angeles, Chicago, Detroit, Boston, Miami and Montreal.

The program was begun by Vertes and Dr. Saul M. Genuth, associate professor of medicine at Case Western and director of Mount Sinai's Saltzman Institute for Clinical Research, in 1971.

"We have the treatment of choice for massive obesity and 80 per cent of the nearly 400 persons in the program get pretty close to their ideal weight," Vertes said.

"This is in contrast to the orthodox weight reduction methods where only 5 per cent are successful in losing 40 pounds."

In the program, patients are permitted no food and no caloric beverages. Instead, they are given a supplement mixed in water or no- calorie drinks, providing 300 calories, largely protein.

Patients are first hospitalized for a week of tests and started on the fast. They then return to the hospital outpatient clinic each week for examination, weighing, blood studies and supplies.

Some patients have lost 200 or 300 pounds, the doctors say, and weight losses of 50 to 100 pounds are common.

Vertes said about half the patients treated at the clinic had high blood pressure but that only a few had to be treated with drugs to control the illness after weight loss.

Other patients "with evidence of diabetes" returned to normal after weight loss and with a controlled diet, Vertes said.

Bridge winners

Winners at the bridge club Thursday in the Ramada Inr were:

First place – Virginia Morrow and Ben Lankheit.

Second and third place (tie) – Bea Depro and Nanette Morris and Mary Goodin and Ann Newton.

Fourth place – Linda Gipson and Marilyn Baker.

All bridge players are invited to perhaps surpass the previous record of seven tables in play. Games start at 7:30 p.m.

Panthers roar to 90-51 romp over Hayti Indians

By BILL HARRISON

LILBOURN — The Lilbourn Panthers gave coach Don Tomlinson and his Hayti Indians a lesson in fastbreak basketball and man to man defense here Thursday night in the final game of the season for both clubs as the state's number one 2-A ball club ripped the Indians 90-51. The win was the second of the season for Lilbourn over the Indians and gave the Panthers a 19-5 slate going into the regional tournament.

With the 2-A regional tournament coming up next week at Hayti the loss by the Indians wasn't exactly good news as the Indians are seeded fourth in the regional and Lilbourn is the first seeded team.

The Hayti Indians were no match for the fast moving Panthers as Lilbourn, behind the shooting of all- state guard Frankie Robinson shot out in front 25-11 in the first period and continued to add to the lead until they had built up a commanding 49-30 halftime.

Coach Tomlinson's team saw their hopes of an upset completely vanish away in the third period as coach Bob Phelps' Panthers defense held the Indians to only seven points in the third period while the home team was ripping the nets for 19.

Robinson flipped in 33 points in the game. Jim Baker scored 18 and Don Treadwell scored 17. Sylvester James led Hayti with 22 points.

Lilbourn's future looks bright as the JV team ripped Hayti 76-63 behind the 31 point output of Glen Blair. Alex Kimbel led Hayti with 18. The Panthers JV team finished the season with a 19-2 slate.

LILBOURN (90)
Robinson 33 Treadwell 17, Baker 18, Wilderness 8, Hurins 3, Willis 4, Adams 3, Roberts 2, Duff 2. TOTALS: FG---36; FT---18; PF---23.

HAYTI (51)
James 22, Jones 2, Robinson 14, Higgins 6, Pulliam 4, Smith 3. TOTALS: FG---21; FT---9; PF---15.

Lilbourn No. 1 again

The Lilbourn Panthers remained atop the heap among the state's Class 2-A teams, according to the latest poll of the Missouri Sportswriters and Sportscasters Association.

The Panthers' 17-5 record kept them in the position which they have occupied most of this season. Kelly is also in the 2-A poll this week, ranked tenth.

Scott Central is ranked second in Class A with a 22-1 record, just behind first place Glasgow. North Pemiscot is ranked tenth in 1-A.

The Kennett Indians moved up to the fourth position in the Class 3-A poll, while the Charleston Bluejays are sixth this week.

In Class 4-A, the Sikeston Bulldogs remain as the only non-metropolitan school in the top ten. The eighth- ranked Bulldogs are 17-5.

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — High-scoring guard Pete Maravich of the New Orleans Jazz was listed as questionable for tonight's National Basketball Association game against Phoenix due to an eight-stitch cut over his right eye.

Chaffee moves past New Madrid

NEW MADRID — The Chaffee Red Devils and the New Madrid Indians ended their regular season schedule on different notes here Thursday night, Chaffee on a high and the Indians on a low as the Red Devils upended the New Madrid team 72-62.

New Madrid was able to match fieldgoals with Chaffee in the game with 28 apiece but coach Ken Davis' quintet put it to them at the freethrow line 16-16.

Chaffee rolled to a 22-18 first period behind the shooting of Don Keefer and Lindy Duncan the balanced scoring of Tony Gist, Craig Hunter and Chris Tanner enabled the Indians to get to within one point, 36-35 at the half.

New Madrid's famous tenacious man to man defense came forth in the third period allowing coach Carroll Compton's Indians to tie the score at the end of the third period at 48-48 but by this time the fouls against the Indians were piling up and Chaffee was getting into the 1-1 freethrow situations and having good success.

Chaffee used the charity line to good advantage in the fourth period to outscore the Indians 24-14.

Keefer and Duncan scored 19 and 18 points respectively for Chaffee and Tanner ended the game with 14 to lead the Indians followed by Gist and Hunter with 12 apiece.

New Madrid won the JV game 50-23 behind Taylor and Robins 10 points apiece output. McGure scored 11 for Chaffee.

Panel's Picks

"We don't have a crystal ball," Dale Forbis was bragging.

"We don't use a door knob or guessing...not nothin'. We use intelligence!"

Sheesh!

With disagreements too numerous to mention springing up all over the place, the panel's predictions for Friday night make it appear that Forb, Mr. Basketball and the Chief have been taking dumb pills.

Just last Tuesday the Chief got so flustered that, when he wrote the list of picks up, he marked down Richland as picked over Sikeston under all three names. (He must have taken an extra dumb pill. Or, is that extra-dumb pill?)

Bulldogs dump Fredericktown

CAPE GIRARDEAU — The Notre Dame Bulldogs warmed up for the Bloomfield regional tournament here Thursday night with a 55-41 defensive battle against Fredericktown.

The famous Notre Dame 1-2-2 zone defense held the Blackcats to only six points in the first period as the Bulldogs were netting 14 and Fredericktown was never able to make up the deficit as Notre Dame led 26-16 at the half and the Bulldogs defense staved off the Blackcats rallies in the last two periods.

Don Blattel and Ken Blattel scored 17 and 18 points respectively in the victory. Mike Stevens scored 15 to lead the Blackcats.

Notre Dame enters the 2-A regional at Bloomfield next week where coach Ed Arzen's Bulldogs are seeded second behind the Kelly Hawks.

Panthers roar to 90-51 romp over Hayti Indians

By BILL HARRISON

LILBOURN — The Lilbourn Panthers gave coach Don Tomlinson and his Hayti Indians a lesson in fastbreak basketball and man to man defense here Thursday night in the final game of the season for both clubs as the state's number one 2-A ball club ripped the Indians 90-51. The win was the second of the season for Lilbourn over the Indians and gave the Panthers a 19-5 slate going into the regional tournament.

With the 2-A regional tournament coming up next week at Hayti the loss by the Indians wasn't exactly good news as the Indians are seeded fourth in the regional and Lilbourn is the first seeded team.

The Hayti Indians were no match for the fast moving Panthers as Lilbourn, behind the shooting of all- state guard Frankie Robinson shot out in front 25-11 in the first period and continued to add to the lead until they had built up a commanding 49-30 halftime.

Coach Tomlinson's team saw their hopes of an upset completely vanish away in the third period as coach Bob Phelps' Panthers defense held the Indians to only seven points in the third period while the home team was ripping the nets for 19.

Robinson flipped in 33 points in the game. Jim Baker scored 18 and Don Treadwell scored 17. Sylvester James led Hayti with 22 points.

Lilbourn's future looks bright as the JV team ripped Hayti 76-63 behind the 31 point output of Glen Blair. Alex Kimbel led Hayti with 18. The Panthers JV team finished the season with a 19-2 slate.

Lilbourn No. 1 again

The Lilbourn Panthers remained atop the heap among the state's Class 2-A teams, according to the latest poll of the Missouri Sportswriters and Sportscasters Association.

The Panthers' 17-5 record kept them in the position which they have occupied most of this season. Kelly is also in the 2-A poll this week, ranked tenth.

Scott Central is ranked second in Class A with a 22-1 record, just behind first place Glasgow. North Pemiscot is ranked tenth in 1-A.

The Kennett Indians moved up to the fourth position in the Class 3-A poll, while the Charleston Bluejays are sixth this week.

In Class 4-A, the Sikeston Bulldogs remain as the only non-metropolitan school in the top ten. The eighth- ranked Bulldogs are 17-5.

Dogs must face Kelly test

According to tests, a mouse's favorite food is chocolate.

By DALE FORBIS

"This is by far the biggest, and toughest, game the rest of the year," says Sikeston's coach Buddy Spears about Friday's encounter with 2-A power Kelly.

Spears' still has unpleasant memories from last season's 85-72 pasting on the rural school's homecourt. The smaller Bulldogs stayed close until the final quarter, then the Hawks pulled away. Rebound power, size and strength told in that game as the Hawks were simply too much inside and outside for the Sikeston team. Possessing an obvious physical advantage this time, the Bulldogs hope to turn the tables on coach Nick Lanpher's hustling Hawks.

The Kelly Hawks epitomize the term, "balanced team." No individual stars wear the purple and gold Hawk colors, but every player is a scoring threat, good on defense and, in most cases, quicker than his Bulldog counterpart. Six-foot-5 Randy Hagar is the inside strength for Kelly and the team's leading scorer at 16.4 points per game. Art Romanowski is next at 13.8 per contest and sophomore David Felter has averaged ten in limited play since being promoted from the jayvee.

Another double-figure man, Ronnie Schlosser has been lost to the Hawks for a week or so after an injury last week. Lately, the 6-foot senior had been the hot man, averaging near 18 points per game.

"Coach doesn't want to lose another game this year," said one Bulldog player, making an obvious statement.

If the Dogs are to enter regional tournament play without another loss, the Kelly game is obviously the most important. But, it'll take a concentrated defensive effort and stronger work on the boards than Spears has received lately. With Sikeston's 6-foot-4 star Marc Eaves warming up his shooting hand for the stretch drive and Harold Dockins contributing more to the offense, the Sikeston team has a lot going---if they just don't let Kelly outhustle them.

The crowd for the Richland game probably was as big as any crowd in the area, but the thousand or so spectators got lost in the confines of the spacious fieldhouse. To upset the tough Hawks a large, vocal crowd is a necessity.

Turlington Hall: Friendly rivals

By CHARLIE FRANCIS

Dexter and Kennett battle tonight, and Dexter will have the chance to play the role of spoilers and knock the Indians out of contention for a tie for first place in the Conference.

But there will be another interesting story- behind- the - game when the two clubs tangle on the Kennett court. Tonight will probably mark the final time that a pair of old coaching rivals – Jim Hall and Terry Turlington -- will man the benches at oppositive ends of the scorer's table.

Both coaches have announced that this will be their final season. Turlington is giving up his duties as roundball coach in order to devote more time to administrative duties at Kennett High School, where he went to general of that club, and it was he who sank two freethrows with no time left on the clock to send the Bearcats into overtime against CBC of St. Louis at Kiel Auditorium. CBC won the game eventually.

Since then, the careers of both work in the fall of 1963 as head basketball coach. Hall has resigned his post at Dexter effective at the end of this season after a conflict with the Dexter school board concerning the school's athletic program.

Some of the area's older basketball fans can remember back to the year 1958 when Turlington and Hall played on the Dexter team that went to the state quarterfinals. Turlington was the all- round ballplayer -- forward, high- post and ball handler. Hall served as the floor men have continued to be amazingly similar. Hall got his start as Dexter head coach only one year after Turlington began at Kennett, and both men have been remarkably successful in producing winners. Going into tonight's game, the Indians have compiled an overall 254-103 record under the guidance of Turlington, whom Hall said was "a tremendous competitor on the floor" and remains such on teh bench. While coaching one less season at Dexter, Jim Hall can boast a record of 220 wins and 95 losses.

Neither mentor can recall just who has gotten the best of it in head- to -head competition between the two friendly rivals, but both admit that it is "very close". Dexter got the best of the Injuns in the mid- sixties, but it has been Kennett that has been winning from Dexter lately. It's been four years since the Bearcats have knocked off Kennett.

But, at the same time, Dexter won the first five meetings between the two. The Indians lost only three games in 1965, and all three were to Kennett.

Anyone not familiar with Southeast Missouri basketball who watched a Dexter- Kennett matchup would swear that Hall and Turlington are enemies, largely because of the competitive nature of the pair.

"Once the game starts, I forget who is on the other bench," said Hall, admitting that he gets no special satisfaction out of beating his golfing buddy. "We're still the best of friends," adds Turlington.

Ali heavily favored

SAN JUAN (AP) — The heavyweight championship comes to Puerto Rico for the first time tonight, pitting Muhammad Ali, a man who has made millions of dollars from the title, against Jean-Pierre Coopman, whose purse will top his previous total earnings.

Ali is an overwhelming favorite to beat the unranked Belgian despite a bothersome cold and less than top condition.

The scheduled 15-rounder is set for the 12,000-seat Roberto Clemente Coliseum and will be televised live to the United States by CBS from 9 to 11 p.m. EST. The fight is scheduled to start at 9:45 p.m.

Ali, who is getting $1.1 million for his 17th appearance in a championship fight, worked out Thursday, then went to the Coliseum where he weighed in at 226 pounds, only 1½ pounds more than he scaled for his classic victory over Joe Frazier last Oct.1.

Coopman, a sculptor of religious statues, weighed 206 for his big chance. He will get about $100,000 for tonight's fight. His previous biggest purse was $12,400.

The weigh-in lacked any of the flair that has marked previous Ali weigh-ins where the champion often gestured and screamed at such opponents as Frazier, George Foreman and Sonny Liston.

It does Ali little good to shout at Coopman because the 29-year-old Belgian speaks only Flemish and doesn't understand a word Ali says.

Coopman goes into the title bout with a record of 24-3-0 with 16 knockouts. Most of his opponents are unknown outside of Europe and he has fought only once before outside of Belgium, losing a decision to Harald Skog in Norway.

For Ali, who spent much of the time in the days leading up to the fight talking about future matches rather than about Coopman, the fight will be his 52nd in a career which began in 1960 and was interrupted for 3½ years because of his refusal to enter U.S. Military Service.

Ali's record is 49-2-0, with 35 knockouts.

Mizzou to face Huskers

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Missouri is close to winning its first conference basketball championship since 1940.

Just one game in back of the Tigers, reaching for what would be their third Big Eight title since 1972, lurk the Kansas State Wildcats.

Both face critical home games Saturday.

Missouri, 9-1 in the conference, hosts Nebraska, which bowed to Kansas State Wednesday night and fell to 7-3.

Kansas State, 8-2, entertains the Kansas Jayhawks, who dropped to 5-5 by losing to Missouri in a photo finish Wednesday, 61-60.

Oklahoma, 5-5, goes after the 3-7 Oklahoma State Cowboys while Iowa State, 2-8, and Colorado, 1-9, duel in a match that could decide last place.

"Most everyone picked Kansas State, Kansas and Missouri before the season to be the three teams contending for the title," said Missouri Coach Norm Steward this week. "But Nebraska has proved itself to be a bona fide threat base n its record and its great defense."

Nebraska's Jerry Fort and Missouri's Willie Smith, two of the top scorers in the Big Eight, will be facing each other for the last time in college. Smith has outscored Fort two of three times already in head-to-head matchups.

Kansas will be crossing paths with Mike Evans, the Kansas State sophomore guard who has been one of the hottest players in the country the past three weeks.

In seven games the 6-2 Wildcat has averaged 25 points and shot 54 per cent from the field and been instrmental in his team's challenging Missouri for the title.

Against Nebraska Wednesday he popped in 30 points.

The Iowa State-Colorado clash does not figure in the conference race, but will probably earn a spot in the Cyclones' sports history book.

Hercle Ivy, Iowa State's 6-3 senior guard, needs just five points to break the school's career scoring record, a feat he would already have accomplished were it not for a pulled groin muscle.

Dogs must face Kelly test

By DALE FORBIS

"This is by far the biggest, and toughest, game the rest of the year," says Sikeston's coach Buddy Spears about Friday's encounter with 2-A power Kelly.

Spears' still has unpleasant memories from last season's 85-72 pasting on the rural school's homecourt. The smaller Bulldogs stayed close until the final quarter, then the Hawks pulled away. Rebound power, size and strength told in that game as the Hawks were simply too much inside and outside for the Sikeston team. Possessing an obvious physical advantage this time, the Bulldogs hope to turn the tables on coach Nick Lanpher's hustling Hawks.

The Kelly Hawks epitomize the term, "balanced team." No individual stars wear the purple and gold Hawk colors, but every player is a scoring threat, good on defense and, in most cases, quicker than his Bulldog counterpart. Six-foot-5 Randy Hagar is the inside strength for Kelly and the team's leading scorer at 16.4 points per game. Art Romanowski is next at 13.8 per contest and sophomore David Felter has averaged ten in limited play since being promoted from the jayvee.

Another double-figure man, Ronnie Schlosser has been lost to the Hawks for a week or so after an injury last week. Lately, the 6-foot senior had been the hot man, averaging near 18 points per game.

What's the law?

The case of the straight shooter

By JACK STRAUSS, LL.B.

Morris was a straight-shooter. During a hold-up, he shot and killed two people. Tried for the crime, he was sentenced to be executed and, in fact, was executed.

Shortly after Morris' demise, his widow tuened up at the offices of an insurance company and demanded payment on an insurance policy that Morris had taken out on his life. She was the named beneficiary.

"Taking out that policy," she explained to a representative of the insurance company, "was the only good thing Morris ever did."

"And even that's no good now," was the response. "Obviously, to pay off an the policy would be against public policy an the best interests of society. If a man is executed for murdering several people, he should not be allowed to benefit from his wrongful act. And that would be the net effect of paying off on the policy."

Dismissed empty-handed, Morris' widow took her claim to court.

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you order the insurance company to pay off on the life insurance policy of straight-shooting Morris?

This is how the judge ruled: YES! The judge held that payment under Morris' life insurance policy was not against public policy since it could in no way benefit Morris. Since Morris was dead, observed the judge, noting could benefit him.

(Based upon a 1956 U.S. District Court Decision)

James Madison, a 1771 Princeton graduate, threw himself into politics and was elected to the Orange County, Virginia, committee of safety in 1775. Throughout the Revolution, Madison was a delegate to both the state and Continental Congress. His political achievements included serving on the state committee that framed Virginia's constitution and bill of rights, authorship of 29 of the Federalist Papers and the U.S. Bill of Rights and service as both Secretary of State and President. What's the law?

The case of the straight shooter

By JACK STRAUSS, LL.B.

Morris was a straight-shooter. During a hold-up, he shot and killed two people. Tried for the crime, he was sentenced to be executed and, in fact, was executed.

Shortly after Morris' demise, his widow tuened up at the offices of an insurance company and demanded payment on an insurance policy that Morris had taken out on his life. She was the named beneficiary.

"Taking out that policy," she explained to a representative of the insurance company, "was the only good thing Morris ever did."

"And even that's no good now," was the response. "Obviously, to pay off an the policy would be against public policy an the best interests of society. If a man is executed for murdering several people, he should not be allowed to benefit from his wrongful act. And that would be the net effect of paying off on the policy."

Dismissed empty-handed, Morris' widow took her claim to court.

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you order the insurance company to pay off on the life insurance policy of straight-shooting Morris?

This is how the judge ruled: YES! The judge held that payment under Morris' life insurance policy was not against public policy since it could in no way benefit Morris. Since Morris was dead, observed the judge, noting could benefit him.

(Based upon a 1956 U.S. District Court Decision)

James Madison, a 1771 Princeton graduate, threw himself into politics and was elected to the Orange County, Virginia, committee of safety in 1775. Throughout the Revolution, Madison was a delegate to both the state and Continental Congress. His political achievements included serving on the state committee that framed Virginia's constitution and bill of rights, authorship of 29 of the Federalist Papers and the U.S. Bill of Rights and service as both Secretary of State and President. The World Almanac recalls.

'Jaws' is named people's choice film

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — "Jaws" snapped up the movie of the year award, while John Wayne and Katharine Hepburn were named actor and actress of the year in the "People's Choice Awards."

"After 50 years of being in showbiz, this award is a significant affirmation of the industry and my career," said Wayne, who also won the top actor award last year.

Jack Albertson hosted the second annual People's Choice awards, which were nationally televised Thursday from the Civic Auditorium in this Los Angeles suburb.

"All in the Family" won the favorite televison comedy award, and the "The Waltons" scored as the top television drama.

Carol Burnett and Telly Savalas were chosen favorite television performers, and John Denver was named favorite musical performer. The year's favorite song was "Love Will Keep Us Together."

Robert Blake was chosen "Favorite Performer in a New Television Series." The favorite new television show award was shared by "Welcome Back, Kotter" and "Starsky & Hutch."

Bob Hope and Tony Orlando shared honors for "All Around Male Performer," and Carol Burnett and Mary Tyler Moore were cowinners of the female performer award.

"People's Choice" organizers noted the winners were those who got the most votes in a poll conducted by a professional research company of 10,000 persons, representing a demographcally correct microcosm of the American public.

Today in U.S. history

By The Associated Press

Today is Friday, Feb. 20th, the 51st day of 1976. There are 315 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1962, John Glenn became the first American to orbit the earth. After being launched from Cape Canaveral, he circled the earth three times and made a safe landing in the Atlantic.

On this date:

In 1437, King James I of Scotland was murdered in the Scottish city of Perth.

In 1792, President George Washington signed an act creating the U.S. Post Office.

In 1809, the U.S. Supreme Court ruled that the power of the federal government is greater than that of any individual state.

In 1938, Anthony Eden resigned as British foreign secretary, charging Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain with appeasement of Nazi Germany.

In 1967, President Sukarno of Indonesia surrendered all executive power to General Suharto, keeping only the title of president.

In 1972, President Richard Nixon arrived in Peking for a historic meeting with officials of Communist China.

Ten years ago: Communist China accused U.S. Secretary of State Dean Rusk of threatening a major war and declared that China was ready to take up the challenge.

Five years ago: North Vietnamese troops defending the Ho Chi Minh trail overran a South Vietnamese outpost and besieged two others in sharp fighting along the border of Laos.

First Christian to host outreach team on Sunday

The concern of the church for extending the mission and ministry of Christ to the people of the whole world will be emphasized Sunday when the outreach visitation team comes to First Christian Church (Disciples of Christ), 1006 N. Main St., for the 10:30 a.m. service.

The Rev. Arthur Detamore

The team will be made up of the Rev. Arthur M. Detamore of Indianapolis and the Rev. Charles B. Barr of Fredericktown. The Rev. Mr. Detamore is vice president and secretary of the Church Finance Council of the Christian Church (Disciples of Christ). The Rev. Mr. Barr is district minister of District 10 (Southeast Missouri).

The Rev. Mr. Detamore has been involved in interpretation of Christian Church Outreach since 1962. Christian Church Outreach includes regular support of regional and general units of the Christian Church responsible for world mission, evangelism, higher education and home centers for the elderly. He has also been involved in capital funds for physical facilities for the church and its units, in reconciliation funds for ministries with minorities and the poor and with the Week of Compassion for world relief and emergencies.

Prior to his work at the general level, the Rev. Mr. Detamore spent 15 years in local pastorates. He has been associate minister of Central Christian Church at San Antonio, Tex., and pastor of First Christian Church in Midwest City, Okla., First Christian Church at Norman, Okla., and South Hills Christian Church in Fort Worth, Tex.

He received bachelor of arts and bachelor of divinity degrees from Phillips University and studied at Pacific School of Religion in Berkeley, Calif., and at Texas Christian University in Fort Worth. He was elected Minister of the Year by the Oklahoma Fellowship of Christian Education Directors in 1957 and served as president of the Oklahoma Christian Ministers Institute during 1957-58.

The Rev. Mr. Detamore has served in numerous capacities in the Christian Church, including membership on the board of directors of the Christian Church in Oklahoma and the Campus Ministries Division in Texas. He was a member and served as secretary of the Council of Agencies of the Christian Church and a member of the executive committee of that group during the 1960s. He was also a member of the committee for the establishment of new congregations.

In 1974, he made a tour of overseas work in six countries of Africa and in India, Thailand, Hong Kong and Japan.

The 1976 outreach visitation is the ninth annual tour in which the district minister and a visitor from outside the district seek to make an interpretive visit to every member congregation.

Bishop on trip to Ghana

BENTON— The Rev. Jack Bishop, Route One, director of missions for Charleston Baptist Association, an organization representing 37 churches in Scott, New Madrid, and Mississippi counties, is in Ghana, West Africa, on an evangelistic trip for the Foreign Mission Board of the Southern Baptist Convention.

The Rev. Mr. Bishop, who departed Feb. 2, is a former pastor of Calvary Baptist Church at Chaffee and has been director of missions for the Charleston Baptist Association for five years.

Due to the tremendous need for overseas evangelists and the thousands in Africa turning to Christianity, several men from this area have gone to Africa for evangelism crusades, including the Rev. Grady Etheridge, pastor of Miner Baptist Church, and Clarence Cantrell of Sikeston Route One, a lay member of Trinity Baptist Church in Sikeston.

The Rev. Mr. Bishop, who is among several ministers from the United States invited on the mission trip by the Foreign Mission Board, has reported from Africa that his mission work there has been very successful so far. His trip includes stops in London, Rome and Paris as well as West Africa.

The Rev. Mr. Bishop will return home Feb. 28.

Fulbright to be crusade speaker

EAST PRAIRIE— An evangelistic crusade will be conducted Sunday through Thursday nights at Nelson Memorial United Methodist Church, located at the corner of Washington and Martin streets, the Rev. John Barleson Jr., pastor, has announced.

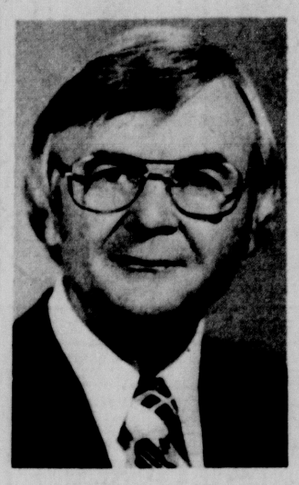
The evangelist for the services--starting at 7:30 each evening--will be Dr. Arthur C. Fulbright, pastor of First United Methodist Church at Sikeston.

The Rev. Mr. Bartleson says the crusade will be a soul-winning effort in which the church will concentrate on reaching and making converts of people of the community who are not Christians.

He added that witnessing will be promoted each night and that the services will feature special singing by talented townspeople.

The Rev. Dr. Fulbright, pastor of First Methodist in Sikeston since early last summer, is a native of Malden and former pastor at Dexter. Prior to moving to Sikeston, he was pastor of Wilkes Boulevard United Methodist Church in Columbia for six years.

The son of a minister, the late Dr. William A. Fulbright Sr., who was pastor of Rauch-Spence Memorial United Methodist Church in Morehouse many years ago, he earned degrees at Southeast Missouri State University in Cape Girardeau, McKendree Methodist College and Graduate School at



Dr. Arthur Fulbright

Lebanon, Ill., and Greenville College and Theological School in Greenville, Ill.

He is married to the former Geraldine Bell of Greenville, Mo., and the father of three married daughters.

The Rev. Dr. Fulbright received a Citizenship Citation Award at Columbia in 1970 and an honor plaque presented by Woodmen of the World in 1972 for commendable service to Columbia and the surrounding area. He also is a member of the American Legion Back to God Department and has had an active interest in both Boy and Girl Scouting.

Senate witness likens Moon cult to Nazism

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nazism is the word for the ideology of the Unification Church founded by the Rev. Sun Myung Moon, a Senate hearing witness said Wednesday.

"The last time I saw the like was in the Nazi youth movement," said Rabbi Maurice Davis. "I tell you I'm scared."

The rabbi, from White Plains, N.Y., was one of more than a dozen speakers at what Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., called "an informal question and answer session" between critics of the movement founded by Moon and representatives of government.

Parents of children converted to the movement, young people who once belonged, and other adults who have observed the church's activities were the witnesses.

Their criticism was blunt and severe but brought little reaction from the hundred or more Moon followers who stood in the back of the crowdedroom, identified by badges and red flowers.

Dr. George Sope of Weschester Community College in New York said the movement is basically subversive of the government, employs "psychologically kidnaped youth" and practices destructive alienation of parent and child.

He quoted from what he said were Moon teachings: "The whole world is in my hand and I will conquer and subjugate the world...the separation of religion and politics is what Satan likes most."

Joan Myer, who quit the church after three years, asked Dole whether a political ideology, a political philosophy "can get a tax exempt status in this country."

Individual speakers posed questions to representatives of such governmental units as the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, the Internal Revenue Service and the Justice Department.

Marian Goldsmith from Rhode Island asked what parents could do "when their sons and daughters are being psychologically and methodically brainwashed."

Mrs. Goldsmith referred to "this evil man, Moon," and said he exercises "total control of their bodies, their lives and their loves"; that he arranges marriages between young people who had never met before.

Dole said he had been presented with a petition signed by more than 14,000 parents from Kansas and surrounding states "demanding to have their views heard with respect to this and related organizations."

He noted that Moon was afforded in opportunity two months ago to present his views in a House caucus room.

Rabbi Davis said a woman in his congregation who was dying of cancer tried repeatedly to reach her daughter who had joined the Moon movement, but that the Unification Church would not permit a visit.

"Ruth Weiss died Sunday," he said. "I wonder what kind of religion it is that tells a daughter she can't be with her dying mother.

School prayer ruling won't be appealed

CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — The city of Rochester will not appeal a federal court injunction against prayer in public schools, according to Mayor and School Board Chairman John Shaw.

U.S. District Court Judge Hugh H. Bownes declared New Hampshire's public school prayer law unconstitutional on Friday and issued a permanent injunction against recitation of prayers in Rochester's schools.

"We are dropping the case," Shaw said Saturday, adding that he believes the state attorney general's office should defend the constitutionality of the state law implemented in Rochester last month with voluntary prayer permitted in city schools.

Shaw also criticized the attorney general's office for failing to volunteer to become a defendant in the American Civil Liberties Union suit against the Rochester School Board. Shaw said the attorney general's office attempted to file a friend-of-the-court brief defending the constitutionality of the state law but did not become actively involved in the case.

In a 20-minute hearing on Friday, Bownes said he was convinced the nine-month-old state law was unconstitutional.

Presbytery to meet Saturday

EAST PRAIRIE— The United Presbytery of the United Association of General Baptists will meet for its semi-annual meeting at 10 a.m. Saturday at First General Baptist Church.

The meeting brings ordained members of General Baptist churches in the area together for the purpose of ordaining people into the ministry, granting licenses to preach and ordaining deacons.

The meeting also includes lectures and sermons on church leadership in the local church, along with fellowship.

Indiana singers to present concert

MALDEN— The Melody Boys Quartet of Farmersburg, Ind., will present a program of gospel and sacred songs Saturday at 7 p.m. in the Malden Church of Christ, 2020 Hwy. West.

The group was organized as a quartet in 1960 and has been actively working as a singing group since that time. The members of the quartet are Jerry Wright, bass; Johnny Wright, baritone; Keith May, lead; and Dennis Piety, first tenor. All are members of the Farmersburg Church of Christ where three of them serve as deacons. Their ages range from 20-32 years old and three of them are married.

The group has worked extensively with churches in the Midwest and North, traveling over 30,000 miles each year singing for gospel meetings, youth rallies, homecomings, dedications, children's homes and gospel singing concerts. They have produced and have for sale seven long play record albums, containing some of their most requested songs.

Scott City church in year-long drive

SCOTT CITY— "The Spirit of 33A.D.— in 1976," a year-long campaign to promote home Bible Study, has been initiated by the Scott City Church of Christ, and is designed to influence residents of Scott City, Illmo, Chaffee, Kiso, Commerce, Benton and the southern portion of Cape Girardeau.

•Brian Lowery, Minister of the local congregation, says the "Spirit" Campaign seeks to "involve individuals in a more dedicated Bible study and make the Bible a part of family living.

•Various activities are planned for the entire year. Recently, a director of family services in St. Louis and directors of Shady Acres Children's Home at Sikeston met at Scott City and discussed various facets of child care for foster children and adoptive children. More than 70 people attended the meeting.

•This weekend, teams of students from Harding College at Searcy, Ark. will join local members of the Church of Christ to canvass the area to set up home Bible Studies and home Bible correspondence courses at no cost or obligation to the participants.

Although the "Spirit" campaign is just now gathering momentum, it was officially launched last Thanksgiving when the Scott City Church of Christ held a Bible Study Emphasis Day.

The most intense part of the campaign will come June 21-28 when 60-70 members of the Vultee Church of Christ at Nashville, Tenn., will travel to Scott City to canvass all of Scott City and neighboring towns promoting Bible study.

The group will also conduct a three-day series of gospel meetings at 7:30 p.m. daily. Carl McKelvey of Nashville will be the speaker. The Nashville group tours America and parts of Europe each year.

Lanuius family to visit Canalou

CANALOU-- The Marvin Launius family of Bearden, Ark., will conduct a special service at p.m. Saturday in the Canalou Assembly of God Church, the Rev. T.G. Perry, pastor, has announced.

The Rev. Mr. Launius is a former pastor at Charleston, and the family, currently active in the evangelistic ministry, has ministered in preaching, music and singing throughout this area.

NEW YORK (AP) — Supervisors who encourage employes "to do their best" have been judged by employes as having the best quality a manager can have, according to an article appearing in the Society for Advancement of Management's "Advanced Management Journal."

Film to be shown on invasion of Israel

AID— "The Coming Russian Invasion of Israel", a hard-hitting film dealing with today's headlines from the Middle East, will be shown at 7 p.m. Sunday in Lick Creek Missionary Baptist Church, located on Route J between here and Acorn Ridge.

Using the Bible as its authority, the movie reviews and reveals God's plan for Israel as that nation faces grave crises in the months to come.

The rapid rise of Russia to the place of one of the great naetions of the world is explored. Only 20 years ago Russia was a broken nation, its manpower destroyed, its cities in ruins and its industries disorganized. Today, Russia unquestionably is one of the great military and political powers of all history.

"What does the Bible say about Russia and how that nation fits into God's plan? These and other questions are dealt with in this unusual film.

Gospel concert planned in community building

MALDEN— A gospel concert will be presented Sunday at 2 p.m. in the new Community Center, Highway 25 North.

The Downings, a gospel group from Nashville, will be the featured singers. Jack Campbell and the Ambassadors of Gideon, along twith The Laymen with Debbie Moore, will also perform, as will Marty, a real live clown.

Advance tickets are available at Overturf Drug Store and the Dairy Queen at a reduced rate.

SBC committee okays budget of $55 million

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — The Southern Baptist Convention's executive committee has boted to recommend a $55 million budget for operating the 35,000-church denomination in fiscal 1976-77.

The new budget, $4 million above the current year's budget, as approved Tuesday at a meeting of the convention's executive committee here.

It includes a $49 million budget for 18 national Southern Baptist agencies and committees and for operation of the convention itself. It will be voted on at the convention's next meeting June 15-17 at Norfolk, Va.

Officials said the proposed budget is based on projections of a continued rise in church receipts.

The denomination's Foreign Missiion's Board would get the largest share of the budget, $23.6 million, an increase of $3.1 million over the current year. The convention's Home Mission Board would receive $9.2 million, an increase of $1.5 million over the current budget.

Other items in the proposed budget include:

Temple of Faith to host quartet

The United Quartet of St. Louis will present a singing program at 7 p.m. Saturday in Temple of Faith General Baptist Church, 309 Smith St.

The POWER of FAITH By WOODI ISHMAEL

THE BIBLE

No. 227. The Book of Proverbs: Temperance

In the book of Proverbs, we find moral virtues emphasized by having pointed out to us their contrary vices. "Hear thou, my son, and we wise, and guide thine heart in the way. Be not among winebibbers; among riotous eaters of flesh: For the drunkard and the glutton shall come to poverty: and drowsiness shall clothe a man with rags." (Proverbs 23:19-21)

To point out the importance of the temperate life, the writer employs questions and answers: "Who hath woe? who hath sorrow? who hath contentions? who hath babbling? who hath wounds without cause? who hath redness of eyes? They that tarry long at the wine; they that go to seek mixed wine." (Proverbs 23:29-30)

Finally, the author sternly warns that "At the last it biteth like a serpent and stingeth like an adder. Thine eyes shall behold strange women, and thine heart shall utter perverse things. Yea, thou shalt be as he that lieth down in the midst of the sea, or as he that lieth upon the top of a mast." (Proverbs 23:32-34)

The POWER of FAITH By WOODI ISHMAEL

THE BIBLE

No. 227. The Book of Proverbs: Temperance

In the book of Proverbs, we find moral virtues emphasized by having pointed out to us their contrary vices. "Hear thou, my son, and we wise, and guide thine heart in the way. Be not among winebibbers; among riotous eaters of flesh: For the drunkard and the glutton shall come to poverty: and drowsiness shall clothe a man with rags." (Proverbs 23:19-21)

To point out the importance of the temperate life, the writer employs questions and answers: "Who hath woe? who hath sorrow? who hath contentions? who hath babbling? who hath wounds without cause? who hath redness of eyes? They that tarry long at the wine; they that go to seek mixed wine." (Proverbs 23:29-30)

Finally, the author sternly warns that "At the last it biteth like a serpent and stingeth like an adder. Thine eyes shall behold strange women, and thine heart shall utter perverse things. Yea, thou shalt be as he that lieth down in the midst of the sea, or as he that lieth upon the top of a mast." (Proverbs 23:32-34)

New ways to improve school data

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Improved means of collecting information on Missouri Education systems should help produce more accurate recommendations for future education needs, Dr. Jack Cross, executive secretary of the Missouri Commission on Higher Education, said Thursday.

Cross made his comments at the opening meeting for committee chairmen of the third Missouri Master Planning Committee. The master plans provide recommendations to the Missouri Commission on Higher Education on coordinating and planning post-secondary education programs in Missouri.

Cross said the two previous plans, issued in 1968 and 1972, were flawed by incomplete information producing overestimates in the number of students in Missouri's colleges and universityies.

"It is a real challenge to plan in times of great unrest, but with the state-wide data systems available, we could produce a unique and good plan," Cross said.

Research for the current plan is divided into six main areas of interest devised by contacting 10,000 people representing students, legislators, teachers, and citizens, Cross said.

The second master plan focused on private as well as public schools, and stressed coordinating programs to avoid unnecessary duplication on various campuses. Cross said those ideas would be used as a basis for the third plan which is expected to take two years to complete.

Cross also mentioned the development of junior college districts throughout Missouri as another issue which would be followed up in the third plan.

which is now in the legislature covers coercion and unfair competition advantage to finance institutions. He said if his department receives complaints involving coercion, it will investigate. However, he noted that his department does not object to the finance institutions making the insurance available, as long as no coercion is involved and as long as other sources of insurance are readily available to the person securing the loan.

He said if a casualty company fails in Missouri, the state has a law requiring that claims against that company must be paid. In order to accomplish this, all of the other insurance companies in the state are assessed and the money is placed in a fund which guarantees payment of the claims. However, there is a maximum amount which will be paid from the guaranteed fund. The claimant only has protection to the limits of the amount of his policy. Edmiston noted also that everything possible will be done to prevent a company from being placed into receivership.

One father asked why boys under 25 were required to pay higher automobile insurance premiums than girls under 25. Edmiston said that policy has been changed and that no distinction is made between male and female anymore in Missouri. However, he did note that other things do enter into the picutre. For example, he said, credit is given to a person who has had driver education or for a student with a "B" average or above.

When asked if the FAIR Plan is under his jurisdiction, he replied yes and then proceeded to explain the purpose of the plan and how it works. The plan basically provides fire insurance and extended coverage (not personal injury coverage) for substandard property or for people who can't obtain insurance through the normal markets. The legal name for the program is "Missouri Property Placement Title Facility," although it is known nationwide as the FAIR Plan, which stands for "Fiar Access to Insurance Requirements."

Anyone interested in applying for FAIR Plan coverage may contact representatives at the Pierce Building, 112 North 4th St., St. Louis, Mo. 63102.

The next "Direct Line" meeting will be held March 19 at 7:30 p.. at the Bloomfield High School cafeteria. James boillot, Missouri Director of Agriculture, will be the quest speaker.

Haywood City asks County Court help

BENTON— Ed Andrews, mayor of Haywood City, and Robert Murphy, a Volunteers in Service to America employe working with the Haywood City Board of Trustees, asked the Scott County Court for its support Thursday in acquiring rent subsidies for Haywood City.

Andrews and Murphy requested that the court send a letter to the Department of Housing and Urban Development office in St. Louis supporting Haywood City's application for Section Eight rent subsidies for five houses.

The court agreed to send the letter.

County Highway Supt. Wayne Diamond reported to the court that about nine highway signs on county road 41 were cut down or pulled up by vandals. Associate Judge Melvin Glueck added that he had received a report of two trees being cut down and left laying across county road 43. Both roads are located near Kelso.

The three-member County Court then agreed to notify the sheriff's department to investigate the incidents and to offer a $50 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the person or persons responsible for the acts.

Ronald C. Launis, representative of Southwestern Bell Telephone Co., told the court that chargesw have been made to the county as a resul of the phone in the lobby of the courthouse. He suggested that the court certify that it was a public telephone and place a sign directing it to be so, which would relieve the court of this additional cost.

He said that the phone at present has at least 10 calls made from ti per day.

The court declared it to be a public phone and authorized a sign to be put inthe hallway.

New plan given okay

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — An improved pension system for legislators and judges was given tentative approval in the Missouri Senate Thursday.

For the state representative and senator now being paid $8,400 annually, the bill amounts to a $420 annual pay increase, since lawmakers will no longer have to contribute 5 per cent of their salaries to the pension program.

Additionally, the total cost of the pension plan will be carried through the state's general revenue fund.

Contributions paid in the past by both the lawmakers and the state into the retirement fund would be transferred to the state's general revenue fund, although the lawmakers would be able to receive their contributions plus interest when they retire.

A representative with 16 years of service would now receive $300 a month.

For the state representative and senator now being paid $8,400 annually, the bill amounts to a $420 annual pay increase, since lawmakers will no longer have to contribute 5 per cent of their salaries to the pension program.

Additionally, the total cost of the pension plan will be carried through the state's general revenue fund.

Contributions paid in the past by both the lawmakers and the state into the retirement fund would be transferred to the state's general revenue fund, although the lawmakers would be able to receive their contributions plus interest when they retire.

A representative with 16 years of service would now receive $300 a month.
